$2,000,000 RUM STOLEN IN U. S. STORE LOOTING

50,000 Quarts of Whisky Gone From Warehouse in Chicago.

DORAN FINISHES QUIZ; MAKES LONG REPORT

Liquor in Barrels, Bottles Replaced With Colored Water by Thieves.

300 PROHIBITION MEN ARE UNDER SUSPICION

Bonded Goods Stored as Medicinal Supply for Entire Midwest Area.

Chicago, July 4 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Prohibition officials and agents in charge of the Government warehouse at 1525 Newberry avenue, have, or did have, 542 barrels of colored water and 8,000 cases of warm red water in the place of 50,000 gallons of bonded whisky when the annual inspection of stock was made a few weeks ago.

The magnitude of the raid on Uncle Sam's liquor supply has not been equaled since the Volstead act became a law. The monetary value is about $2,000,000 at the prevailing bootleg price of $40 a gallon. Yet even this figure does not exhaust the probable profits, for it is almost certain that the liquor was cut one or two times.

Where did the liquor go? Evidently all around the town.

The warehouse is a concentration place for Government liquor. The whisky came from distilleries in Kentucky, Hammond, Ind., throughout the Middle West. There was a total of between 3,000 and 4,000 barrels in the warehouse. Guarding, gauging and sniffing around, the Government had 50 men watching the precious stuff. Some 200 had entrance and run of the place.

Quiz Began by Doran.

Dr. Doran in Washington began an investigation as soon as he found his barrels loaded with water. That investigation has been almost completed. It has been in progress for weeks. What Dr. Doran and his sleuths have discovered has not been made public.

It is asserted that the big thirst raid was made through the connivance of guards at the warehouse.

The extent of the conspiracy and the channels through which it ramifies are still under investigation. It is stated that 100 persons are under suspicion and among them the owners of certificates covering the liquor.

Dr. Doran admitted that the whisky in perhaps 500 barrels had been stolen and replaced with the colored water.

Denies News Suppression.

He was not sure whether the bottled goods had been tampered with.

"I don't know just how many barrels are affected," he said. "It is possible that 500 barrels were tampered with, but I do not think that many were removed. There are 3,000 or 4,000 barrels in the warehouse."

He denied that the department was trying to suppress news of the affair.

Among other things, the 84-page report submitted by the investigating agents was said to contain the following charges:

That 748 barrels of whisky in the Sibley plant actually have been tampered with; that in most cases all the whisky has been removed and water substituted; that 421 barrels in Chicago have been actually condemned.

121 More Barrels Shipped.

That 121 more barrels with a "history" are on a platform in Frankfort, Ky., having been shipped there from the Sibley warehouse only to be refused as containing water and not whisky at the receiving warehouse.

That all the whisky was removed and the water put in while the whisky was under a 24-hour-a-day surveillance by gaugers and Government storekeepers of the prohibition forces and that there must have been widespread connivance or the whisky could not possibly have been removed.

That several hundred men, including 41 gaugers and storekeepers, in all some 300 prohibition employes on duty in Chicago, and all the owners of the certificates covering the whisky, come under suspicion in this investigation.

8,000 Cases Stolen.

That there were also about 80,000 cases of 100 proof whisky in the warehouse and that the Government's tests showed that 14 or 15 per cent, or at least 8,000 cases, had water substituted in the bottles for whisky.

That the whisky taken from the 421 condemned barrels and the 8,000 cases, each containing three gallons, would be worth at bootleg prices $40 a case; the barrel goods $842,000; the bottled goods, $960,000; a total of $1,802,000.

That certain Government agents, attempting to put the quietus on the whole matter, threatened the owners of the whisky certificates with prosecution as parties to the thefts if they did not agree quietly to allow the barrels and bottles of water to be seized as

Special Edition Printed To Hide News of Death

Yonkers, N. Y., July 4 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Because the news of the death of Albert C. Odell, construction superintendent of the New York Telephone Co., might prove fatal to his daughter, who was a patient in Yonkers General Hospital, the Yonkers Herald recently published an edition especially for the daughter, omitting the obituary of Mr. Odell.

Plans were made to send the special copy of the Herald to the hospital, where Mrs. Hazel Grady, the daughter, and a regular reader of the paper, might read it without learning of the death. When the special copy was run off, it was discovered two fraternal organizations had inserted paid notices referring to the death.

Again the edition was remade and the notices taken out. Mrs. Grady did not learn of her father's death until several days later, when her condition had improved.

PORTUGUESE CABINET RESIGNS PORTFOLIOS

Decision to Quit Presented by Three Ministers After Row Over Decree.

PARADES CAUSE TROUBLE

Lisbon, Portugal, July 4 (U.P.).—The cabinet of Prime Minister Jose Vicente de Freitas decided tonight to resign en bloc as a result of a controversy over religious processional regulations which caused the resignation of three ministers this afternoon.

Minister of Justice Mario de Figueiredo, Minister of Agriculture Pedro de Castro Pinto Bravo and Minister of Instruction Gustavo Cordeiro Ramos presented their resignations.

The issue which had been under discussion involved a recent decree of the minister of justice which permitted religious parades and liberty in connection with ringing of church bells. The previous regulations made it necessary to obtain permission.

The minister of war and other members of the cabinet opposed the decree.

An official note issued after the cabinet had decided to resign, said the action "is in consequence of a divergence of opinion in the cabinet."

The note said the resignation had been accepted by the president of the republic, Gen. Antonio de Fragosco Carmona, who announced that he would immediately move to solve the political crisis.

Two Soldiers Held For Police Inquiry

Woman, Alleging an Attack, Entered Cab With Them, Police Say.

Two soldiers, Frederick Williams and John Burns, both of Troop F, Third Field Artillery, at Fort Myer, are being held by military authorities following an investigation made by A. D. Langley, constable of Arlington County, and Officer William H. Thompson, of the county, in connection with an alleged attack on Mrs. Rosalie Gillette, 751 Tenth street southwest, Washington. Mrs. Gillette is in Casualty Hospital with a skull fracture and other injuries.

According to police, the attack occurred on the Government reservation some time after midnight Monday.

Police say that Mrs. Gillette and another woman, Mrs. Lillian Fontaine, met the two soldiers early Monday night and got into a taxi cab at Pennsylvania avenue and Seventh street northwest.

30 Years Given Sicilian For Brooklyn Murder

Palermo, Sicily, July 4 (A.P.).—George Dasaro, accused of complicity in the murder of two clerks of the West End Bank in Brooklyn, N. Y., during a holdup in 1923 in which $43,000 was stolen, today was found guilty by a jury here and sentenced to 30 years solitary confinement.

TRACTION MEN FAVORABLE TO MALTBIE PLAN

New Merger Proposal Is Likely to Be Based on Scheme.

PRESENT FARE WOULD CONTINUE TWO YEARS

Provides No Valuation of Consolidation for the Present.

LACK OF CAR-TO-BUS TRANSFERS IS FAULT

Attitude of Utilities Board on Such an Agreement Is Problematical.

The so-called Maltbie plan for a street car merger probably will be suggested as a basis for negotiations by the traction officials if they accept the invitation of the Public Utilities Commission to submit a new merger proposal.

While Harley P. Wilson, sponsor of the merger, and other traction officials have never said so publicly, it is known that the Maltbie plan is acceptable to them.

Under the aMltbie plan, the Washington Railway & Electric Co., and the Capital Traction Co., together with the Potomac Electric Power Co., and the Washington Transit Co., would be merged without any valuation, or fare-rate base, being specified in the merger agreement.

Continue Rate Two Years.

The present rate of fare would be continued for two years, by which time, it is estimated, an entirely new valuation would be completed.

The Maltbie plan represented a compromise and was drawn up after a series of conferences between the traction heads and Dr. Milo R. Maltbie, New York utilities expert, who was in the employ of the Senate District committee.

The principal differences between this plan and the one that it superseded—the so-called Wilson plan, sponsored by Harley P. Wilson—lies in the valuation and the continuation of the present fare.

Whereas the Wilson plan provided for a $50,000,000 valuation for a 10-year period, the Maltbie plan omitted any specific valuation, and whereas the Wilson plan guaranteed a continuation of the present fare for only one year, the Maltbie plan continued it for two years.

Transfer Plan Displeases.

The Maltbie plan, however, was not entirely acceptable to those citizens who had fought the Wilson plan. One fault found with it was that it did not provide free transfers from street cars to buses, and another was tha it did not provide for transfer of the depreciation reserve of the two traction companies.

After the Maltbie plan had been incorporated in a joint Senate and House resolution, designeed to authorize the merger, Senator Blaine offered a series of amendments to it. One of these provided that the traction properties should be valuated under the "prudent investment" theory rather than under the "reproduction cost" theory.

The traction magnates, it is known, are violently opposed to this particular amendment of Senator Blaine, and would never agree to a merger if it were adopted.

How the new Public Utilities Commission will feel toward the Maltbie plan, of course, remains to be seen. Thus far, none of them has expressed an opinion on this or any other plan.

FRANCE DELAYS ACTS TO RATIFY U. S. DEBT BILL

Deputies Commission Now Insists Reservations Be Incorporated.

GERMANS' PAYMENTS ARE DEMANDED FIRST

Poincare Moves to Avoid Reconsideration of the Entire Subject.

REVERSED STAND LAID TO INTENSE LOBBYING

Entire Nation Unites in an Observance of America's Independence Day.

Paris, July 4 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—The finance commission of the Chamber of Deputies, which a few days ago pledged itself to support Premier Raymond Poincare in his fight for unconditional ratification of the Mellon-Berenger debt accord with the United States, today took a stand diametrically opposed to that of the government.

By a vote of 17 to 16, with 11 abstaining, it decided to recommend to Parliament that reservations be incorporated in the text of the bill ratifying the agreement, the most important of these providing that France's payments would be reduced or postponed if Germany fell behind her reparations payments under the Young plan.

The Poincare government has insisted that not any reservations should be embodied in documents outside the text of the ratification bill. It has been suggested that they might be set forth in a separate resolution of Parliament, to be transmitted to Washington. Poincare is understood to be prepared to stake the life of his cabinet on this issue.

Poincare Halts Resignation.

As a result of the finance commission's vote this afternoon, Francois Pietri, reporter of the commission, resigned. Premier Poincare insisted that the resignation be withdrawn, and M. Pietri acquiesced. Had he declined to do so, it would have entailed election of a new reporter and fresh consideration of the whole subject by the commission.

Delay in presentation to the chamber of the government's ratification bill seems inevitable as a result of the finance commission's vote today.

Debate on the bill now probably will not get under way before July 16, only 15 days before the maturity date of France's $400,000,000 debt to Washington for supplies taken over from the American army after the Armistice. Washington has intimated its willingness to waive collection of this debt on Aug. 1 providing the war debt accord has been ratified by that time.

Intense Lobbying Blamed.

Today's right-about-face by the finance commission is understood to have been the outcome of the intense lobbying carried on during the past few days by opponents of the government's ratification measure.

Independence Day has never been feted in France as it was today. It was treated almost like a French national holiday. Public buildings everywhere floated American flags beside the Tricolor of France. The Louvre, where Poincare has his office, was covered with a new set of American flags and throughout the city and the country many American flags flew both from public and private buildings. Most of them appeared to be new ones.

The entire French nation seemed to be making a special and spontaneous effort to express friendliness and sympathy toward the United States.

The country is torn by the controversy over settlement of the war debts to the United States. The question is vital to France and the vast majority of people in this country are convinced that some reservation must accompany ratification, making the ratification dependent upon Gemany paying her reparations obligations in full.

Today's manifestation was as if France were saying: "Please don't take this argument personally."

Expressions Are Recalled.

Publicly expressed sentiments today swung from what President De Chauffault, of the France-American committee, said over the tomb of Lafayette: "We are your elders—no longer rich—so don't forget the human law that the young should aid the old," to the words of the president of the Paris city council, M. D. Andigne, before the statue of the American volunteers in the French army, who said: "We must take care to do nothing which might weaken the bonds between the two peoples which are so touchingly represented here."

The finance commission's vote today is highly significant, as it discloses that many deputies from the conservative parties are ready to insist with the radicals and the socialists that the French reservations have teeth to them.

The radical group of the chamber issued a statement in which it stated it would insist upon reservations being

THREE PLANES "BOMB" CROWD WHILE CAPITAL'S FOURTH ENDS WITH SPECTACULAR FIREWORKS

FIVE PERSONS HURT IN HOLIDAY CRASHES

Bus Is Damaged in Wreck as Two Passengers Are Injured, One Badly.

MAN, 53, HIT-RUN VICTIM

Five accidents, including two hit-and-run cases and one bus crash, was the holiday toll of motor mishaps in the District yesterday. One man in a hit-and-run accident was caught after a five-block chase, after he is said to have crashed into an unoccupied parked car; another escaped after striking and injuring an aged man, while in the bus accident two persons were injured, one seriously.

Arrests were at the lowest figure since the police started their drive against traffic offenders, only 89 being summoned. This was attributed to the fact that so many spent the holiday out of town.

One man was injured, possibly seriously, and his wife sustained minor cuts on the right hand when the Trinidad-bound bus of the Washington Coach Co., on which they were riding with thirteen other passengers, crashed into an electric light standard at 2:45 o'clock yesterday afternoon at Twentieth and M streets northwest.

Robert Chamberlin, 52 years old, of 1807 Thirty-fifth street northwest, received internal injuries and was in an undetermined condition at Emergency Hospital, while his wife, Mrs. Blanche Chamberlin, 40 years old, was given medical aid there and dismissed. Both were taken in a private automobile to the hospital, where the man was found to be suffering, despite a report at the scene to police that only the woman was injured.

The accident occurred when Edwin R. Clement, 22 years old, of 1115 Staples street northeast, driver of the bus, swerved the machine far to the left at the corner and onto the sidewalk to avoid crashing with a machine occupied by two women, which rounded the corner and disappeared. Police are seeking the unidentified driver of this automobile.

The bus was damaged to a small extent on its right fender and the door, its glass and the windshield being shattered by the impact. The other passengers reported themselves unhurt.

The only two other accidents reported were hit-and-run cases.

Queen Harry Harley, 31 years old, colored, of 306 Fifteenth street southeast, is in jail at the Fourth Precinct charged with being a hit-and-run driver, with reckless driving, and operating an automobile without a District of Columbia permit, after he fled from the scene after crashing a borrowed automobile into the rear of a parked car belonging to George Coppage, of 2017 Benning road northeast, in front of Coppage's home.

After striking the Coppage automobile, Harley jumped from the machine in which he was driving and attempted to escape, but after a chase of about five blocks he was caught by J. E. Burroughs, of 1615 Eastern avenue; Burton Maskward, of 3024 Benning road, and M. R. Maxfield, of 2017 Benning road, who turned him over to the police.

John Ryder, 63 years old, of 119 Pennsylvania avenue northwest, was treated at Emergency Hospital early yesterday morning for slight injuries received when he was struck by a hit-

Sandlot Ball Game Seen By Hoover, Unobserved

President Hoover spent the Fourth of July very much in the manner of an ordinary citizen. He took the day off, except for a few minutes spent in the executive office during the morning. Afterward he took a stroll through the Ellipse and paused to watch three baseball games in progress between sandlot teams. He moved from one game to the other, as the one he was watching lost interest. Despite his wanderings and the time spent at each diamond, few, if any, recognized him.

The President and Mrs. Hoover brought their observance of the day to a close just as most Washingtonians did—witnessing the fireworks display on the Monument Grounds. The President and the First Lady viewed the exhibition from the south portico of the White House.

Mexicans Kill Fourteen Rebels Seeking Pay Roll

Mexico City, July 4 (A.P.).—Newspaper dispatches from Aguas Calientes today said that fourteen rebels were killed in a four-hour fight with federal troops near the town of Tepezalilia, the dead including Manuel Rodriguez, a rebel leader. It was stated that the rebels tried to ambush an army paymaster en route from Aguas Calientes to the garrison town of Calvillo, but the paymaster's escort sold off the 200 attacking rebels until reinforcements arived.

Auto Race Winner Killed As His Car Crosses Line

Pompano, Fla., July 4 (A.P.).—E. C. Watts, of Tampa, won third place in today's Fourth of July 10-mile dirt track automobile race, but was killed just after he crossed the finish line.

As his car swept into the final turn, Watts turned to wave to friends. His car struck a rut, rolled over the finish line, crashed through a fence and overturned. Watts received fractures of the back, skull and arm. He died en route to a hospital.

BOOTLEG FIREWORKS CAUSE INJURIES TO 11

Majority of Victims Adults; Ten Arrests Are Made as Ban Is Ignored.

NONE OF HURTS SERIOUS

Bootleg firecrackers yesterday injured eleven persons—mostly adults—and resulted in the arrest of ten or more persons on charges of discharging the outlawed noise-makers, according to a check-up of the hospitals an dpolice precincts last night.

With the exception of two young men who were dangerously burned about the eyes, none of the injuries was serious, and of those arrested all were released on nominal collateral or fines with the exception of Joseph Hellman, 18 years old, of 98 D street southwest, who was arrested early yesterday afternoon for discharging firecrackers in front of his home, and who at a late hour last night was still occupying a cell at the Fourth Precinct station in default of collateral.

The first victim was Frank Proehazka, 42 years old, of Benning, who, on the stroke of midnight, lighted a huge cracker which exploded in his hand. The accident occurred in Capital Heights, and the Prince Georges County fire rescue squad brought Proehazka to Casualty Hospital, where the burns and lacerations of the hand were treated and said not to be serious.

Vincent A. Gaegler, 17 years old, of apartment 212, 330 Rhode Island avenue northeast, suffered severe injuries to the left eye and side of his face when an unknown person threw a lighted fire cracker at him, while he was repairing an automobile tire in front of his home yesterday morning. The lighted missile exploded as it struck him in the face. Gaegler was taken to the Episcopal Ear, Eye and Throat Hospital for treatment.

William Diggs, 18 years old, of 614 Franklin street northeast, was also

FIFTH OF POPULATION OF CITY SEES DISPLAY

Monument Grounds Draw 100,000, Who Honor Nation's Birthday.

HEROES OF 1776 WIN PRAISE OF HARRISON

Mississippian Urges Adherence to Principles Laid Down During Revolution.

Surprising nearly 100,000 Washingtonians and their guests, celebrating Fourth of July on the grounds of the Washington Monument last night, three "enemy" planes bombed the crowd and mythically killed and maimed thousands. Their carnage complete, the three planes, brilliantly lighted as an added "insult" to the defenders of the assembly, droned their way into the night and disappeared.

Using decidedly warlike tactics, the planes foiled the detail of National Guardsmen on duty to prevent such a foray over the unprotected public, by reappearing after they had apparently been driven into retirement by a withering antiaircraft fire from the ground.

The planes first blazed a trail of light across the eastern sky while formal ceremonies in observance of Independence Day were taking place in the Sylvan Theater on the Monument Grounds. As the speaking came to a close the planes swooped over the grounds, bringing forth a barrage of antiaircraft firing from the Guardsmen, and soon the enemy was in retreat.

Defenders Caught Helpless.

Believing that the danger had been averted, the guardsmen trundled their guns away from the scene and disbanded. No sooner had this been done than the planes came back to drop red and green bombs on the unsuspecting celebrants below and the guileless guardsmen, astounded at the effrontery of the "enemy," we caught helpless with those whom they were supposed to protect.

Seriously speaking, the sham battle between the planes and the guardsmen was a spectacular new feature of the annual program marking Independence Day—a program which drew a fifth of the city's population to the vicinity of the Washington Monument, where patriotic speeches, torchlight parades, band music and, last but not least, a magnificent display of fireworks, served to entertain young and old alike.

The planes, piloted by Capt. Harold M. McClelland, Lieut. Newton W. Longfellow and Lieut. Charles W. Sullivan, with only red and green lights showing on the tips of the wings, zoomed majestically over the Sylvan Theater early in the evening. Flashing on white lights, which illuminated the wings, fuselage and elevators, the planes, in formation, formed a stirring spectacle. While the national guardsmen cut loose with a battery of antiaircraft guns and the planes disappeared.

Planes Circle Monument.

Then when the ground fire had been discontinued and the fireworks display was getting under way, the three airmen returned to circle around the Monument on several occasions, using varied formations and occasionally adding a red or a green piece of fireworks to the already gorgeous array bursting in the air.

All in all it was splendid climax for a day filled to the brim with amusement, relaxation and enjoyment for the public. Perfect weather conditions enabled residents of the Capital and a host of visitors from every tState in the Union to go through with their programs for the holiday without alterations.

Film Fame Seekers Anxious As Post-Fox Test Nears End

Contestants Work Even on Holiday to Get Opportunity.

Yesterday may have been a holiday to most of the residents of Washington and vicinity, but to entrants in the Post-Fox Screen Test Contest who have not yet obtained the required number of subscriptions to The Sunday Washington Post to assure them of a screen test, it was just another day in which to keep busy in an effort to win a place in the motion picture industry.

These late comers in the contest realize they have only a few hours left in which to slide under the wire and be among the contestants whose screen tests will be shown at the Fox Washington theater and if fortunate, among the ten whose tests will be displayed before the executives of the Fox Film Corporation who are anxiously scanning tests of amateurs in search of new talent for their pictures.

Daughter of Legation Aid Of China Lost in Big Crowd

Others Stay at Monument Display and are Found by Park Police.

Unable to speak a word of English and so equally unable to seek assistance for herself, Kiae Ting Wu, 9 years old, daughter of Ta Kwang Wu, secretary of the Chinese Legation, was one of half a dozen children who became separated from parents and friends last night in the crowd assembled on the Monument Grounds.

Park police were notified by the legation that the girl had wandered away from the party who took her to see the fireworks and an immediate search was begun. However in the meantime, Pih Min-Yu, second secretary of the legation, had instituted a search of his own and the girl had been found and returned to her father. She remained to enjoy the remainder of the program.

away from the office or the shop, a hundred thousand men, women and children assembled early in the evening in the vicinity of the monument to the Father of America. They came early and they remained until the "Good-night" piece in the pyrotechnic display had burned to the last ember.

Band Gives Concert.

Ceremonies in the Sylvan Theater began with a half hour's concert by the United States Marine Band. E. F. Colladay, chairman of the citizens committee which arranged for the celebration, introduced the Rev. Hugh T. Stevenson, pastor of Bethany Baptist Church, who offered the invocation. Following the singing of "America" by the audience, Rabbi Abram Simon, of the Washington Hebrew Congregation, read the Declaration of Independence. "America, the Beautiful" was the next number sung by the audience, led by Herman Fakler.

Senator Pat Harrison, of Mississippi, delivered the principal address in the Sylvan Theater, in which he paid tribute to the "three million noble men and women" who had the courage to "throw down the gage of battle to the most powerful nation on the face of the earth" some 153 years ago and declare their independence.

Equal Treatment Urged.

After outlining the marvelous growth of the Nation, the Senator urged his audience to study and determine for themselves whether or not the principles on which the country is founded are being maintained. "Favoritism and discrimination were timbers refused by the illustrious builders of this great structure," he declared, "and we should in the administration of government see to it that every class of our people and every section of our broad land be treated justly and alike.

"While this government should maintain an adequate Army and Navy for its safety and protection, it does not relieve it of the obligation to bring about common understandings providing for reduction of armaments to the lowest possible point among all the Nations of the world.

"It is, too, a happy thought that on this anniversary day, one hundred and fifty-three years after we were gripped in battle against Great Britain, that now and for so long a time have their people and our people felt such a fine feeling of friendship and common interest, that now the new leader of that great Government is preparing to come to our land, merely as an expression of renewed good feeling and better understanding. Long since have the wounds of '76 healed and today the monuments that mark the boundaries between our northern neighbor and ourselves grow more significant and beautiful.

Nation Stands at Pinnacle.

"Tonight we stand upon the apex of our greatness. If that place remains secure, we must continue to commune with the spirit of our fathers, whose inspiration is our glory, and whose handiwork is the surest guarantee of our safety and happiness and progress."

At the conclusion of Senator Harrison's address, while the Marine Band played Sousa's "Stars and Stripes Forever," color bearers and color guards of some 30 patriotic and service organizations marched down the aisle of the theater to the stage, where the colors were massed in a brief but intensely effective ceremony. With the colors waving in the breeze, the audience rose to sing "The Star-Spangled Banner," and to hear the benediction pronounced by the Right Rev. C. S. Thomas.

As the crowd rushed from seats in the theater to vantage points on the hillsides of the Monument to watch the fireworks, there began a torchlight parade by the organizations participating in the program. Red lights furnished by the railroads entering the Capital furnished the background and against the light of these flares, steel helmets of drum and bugle corps members glistened, rifles gleamed and banners shone resplendent.

The sham battle between the planes and the Guardsmen was accompanied and followed by the big fireworks exhibition. Bombs burst in the air to shower vari-colored balls over the huge assemblage. "Devil-chasers" in mid-air delighted the children as did a series of pinwheels. Two huge pieces showing the American flag and a portraiture of George Washington were high spots in the program. The huge flag to be suspended by parachutes at a height of 500 feet failed to materialize but everyone went home satisfied that the Fourth had been sufficiently celebrated.

Although the crowd exceeded the expectations of police and other officials who had prepared to handle traffic, there was little disorder and the multitude was directed to and from the grounds without a serious mishap or traffic tieup.

Maj. Henry G. Pratt, superintendent of police; Inspector Thaddeus R. Bean, in charge of detectives at night; Col. U. S. Grant 3d, director of Public Parks and Public Buildings, and E. W. Brown, assistant superintendent of police in charge of the Traffic Bureau, praised the work of both city and park police in taking care of the enormous throng.

While the program at the Monument held the center of the stage for the largest gathering of the day, a number of community celebrations drew their full share of participants and onlookers, while other thousands, including many Government workers, thronged the beaches and resorts outside of Washington where additional Fourth of July entertainments were enjoyed.

NEWS FROM MARYLAND AND VIRGINIA

SUMMER INSTITUTE TO DISCUSS DRY LAW

Dr. Moley Will Head Round Table at University of Virginia Next Month.

MANY NOTABLES INVITED

Charlottesville, Va., July 4 (A.P.).—Public interest is expected to be centered to a large extent on the round-table discussion of law enforcement at the University of Virginia's Institute of Public Affairs next month as a result of the discussion of this subject in recent weeks through appointment by President Hoover of a law-enforcement commission. Dr. Raymond Moley, professor of public law at Columbia University, has been named leader of the round-table and a number of well-known national figures will be among those on the program.

University authorities regard Dr. Moley's acceptance of the leadership of this important round table as fortunate in view of his wide experience in the study of criminal law and his service on research commissions. He is the author of several books on crime and criminal justice.

Dr. Moley is a native of Ohio, holds an A. M. degree from Oberlin College, a Ph. B. degree from Baldwin-Wallace College and a Ph. D. from Columbia University. He was for a time superintendent of schools at Olmsted Falls, Ohio, and successively served as a teacher at West High School, Cleveland; instructor and assistant professor of politics, Western Reserve University; director, Cleveland Foundation; associate professor of government, Columbia; lecturer on political science at the University of Chicago and professor of public law at Columbia University.

Dr. Moley directed surveys of criminal justice for the Cleveland Foundation, was research director of the New York Crime Commission and consultant and crime commissioner for the States of Illinois and Pennsylvania.

Full Program Held At Wesley Heights

Flag Exercises, Parade and Athletic Events Are Features.

Residents of the Wesley Heights section celebrated the Fourth of July yesterday at annual exercises sponsored by the Wesley Heights Community Club, with events principally at the clubhouse at Forty-fifth and Macomb streets northwest.

The program, arranged by a committee headed by John H. Yates, opened at 9 o'clock yesterday morning with flag-raising exercises and the singing of "The Star-Spangled Banner," led by Mrs. Ethel H. Gawler, at the clubhouse. This was followed by games and athletic contests on the American University campus and a baseball game in the forenoon.

A tennis tourney in the afternoon preceded a costume parade of Wesley Heights children for five blocks along Cathedral street. Last night a fireworks display was held at Nebraska avenue and Tunlaw road, followed by a dance at the clubhouse.

Body of Boy Found By Chums at Picnic

Frank Galford Dislocated Neck Diving; Resuscitation Fails.

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., July 4.—Several children at a Methodist Sunday school picnic today on the Potomac River, wading along the bank, tramped on the submerged body of Frank Galford, 12, son of A. C. Galford, Western Maryland Railway brakeman living at Ridgely, W. Va., opposite this city.

The children drew the body out and several teachers tried resuscitation without success. A physician who examined the body said the boy had dislocated his neck in diving and his forehead was gashed. Indications were that he was dead for an hour before discovery. The Galford boy went to the river from the picnic after noon, but his companions did not see him drown.

An inquest was deemed unnecessary by Magistrate A. F. Ritenour, of Ridgely, and the body was removed to a local undertaking establishment. The Cumberland police went to the scene in their rescue car with a pulmotor, but were unable to revive the lad.

Salesman Crushed As Auto Overturns

James T. Leftwcih Forced From Road by Another Car, Is Report.

Special to The Washington Post.

Bedford, Va., July 4.—James T. Leftwich, aged 44 years, was instantly killed Wednesday evening about 7 o'clock when his car turned over on the Forest road, a short distance west of Campbell's store. Mr. Leftwich was headed west when a car going in the opposite direction struck the fender of his car, and he turned out of the road.

It is thought that he attempted to turn back into the road and that he cut the wheels too short, causing them to lock, crushing both wheels and turning the car over. Mr. Leftwich was caught under the car. The body was brought to Bedford and prepared for burial at M. P. Carder Co. funeral parlors.

Mr. Leftwich was well known in the county, having run for sheriff at the last general election. He had been employed as a salesman for the Economy Motor Sales Co., and the car he was driving was owned by this concern. Funeral services will be held from Shiloh Church Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Postmastership Heir Returns Job to Father

Danville, Va., July 4.—William A. Betts, colored, has been appointed postmaster of the nearby colored settlement, Almagro. The Almagro postmastership has been a family affair for a number of years. Betts held it for 30 years and then passed it to his son, Gustavon. The son now has passed it back to his father.

Some 2,500 negroes are served and the salary paid is a percentage of the stamp cancellations, according to Betts, who said he has accepted the appointment only because he heard the office would be disontinued unless he did.

Native of Morgantown Dead on Pacific Coast

Special to The Washington Post.

Romney, W. Va., July 4.—Word has been received here of the death in Pasadena, Calif., of J. Frank Nelson, 62 years old, a native of this county, graduate of West Virginia University, former editor of the Morgantown (W. Va.) Post and founder of the Morgantown New Dominion.

At one time he was secretary of the Democratic committee of Monongalia County and was city auditor in Morgantown for several years. He was engaged in the real estate business in California. Surviving are his widow and three children.

SECRETARY OF NAVY GUEST AT UNVEILING

Exercises in Memory of Thomas Johnson Are Conducted at Frederick.

OFFETT DELIVERS SPEECH

Special to The Washington Post.

Frederick, Md., July 4.—Charles Francis Adams, Secretary of the Navy, great grandson of John Adams, former president of the United States, and a collateral descendant of Thomas Johnson, the first governor of Maryland, was the guest of honor at the unveiling of a monument in Courthouse Park today to the memory of Johnson. He arrived here accompanied by his aid, Capt. G. F. Neal, and was met by the unveiling committee headed by Judge Glenn H. Worthington. He occupied a platform in front of the courthouse where the ceremonies took place.

In a short address, Secretary Adams said he did not come to Frederick with the expectation of making an address, but came for the pleasure to be back among his ancestral relations and friends. He said he brought a message of sympathy and understanding from New England and was glad to be present on the occasion of honoring the memory of a great Marylander. Johnson was the original suggestor of the nomination of George Washington for commander in chief of the Continental Army, he said, and read from a letter of John Adams to this effect.

Audience Applauds Statements.

The next speaker, Judge T. Scott Offett, member of the Maryland Court of Appeals and president of the Maryland Society, Sons of the American Revolution, the orator of the day, declared that it was Johnson who nominated Washington for commander in chief. These declarations brought forth great applause from the large audience. Heretofore some historians have claimed that Johnson nominated Washington while others have given this credit to President Adams.

William Tyler Page, clerk of the House of Representatives, and a native of this city, referred to his early life in Frederick. He stated that he started as page in the House of Representatives fifty years ago. The late Champ Clark declared that he must have been born in the Capitol, he said, while another member of Congress said he was perhaps left on the Capitol steps. Mr. Page said he considered Frederick his home and that the records of the Episcopal Church showed that he was baptised in that church.

Present Politics Rapped.

"We have fallen upon a time," he declared, "when practices and policies of the present are foreign to the conception of the framers of the Declaration of Independence. While some of the present policies have been established in the name of progress, they might lead us along the path of foreign countries."

Other speakers were H. Dorsey Etchison, who accepted the monument on behalf of the county commissioners; Davis C. Winebrenner, 3rd, Secretary of State, who accepted the monument on behalf of the State in the absence of Governor Ritchie, and Edward S. Delaplaine, historian and authority of the life of Thomas Johnson.

The memorial, a granite shaft on which rests the bust of Johnson, was unveiled by Miss Charlotte P. Smith and Miss Ann G. Dennis, direct descendants of Johnson.

The stage from which the addresses were made was occupied by members of the Memorial Association, county commissioners, relatives of Johnson, and representatives of patriotic, civic and fraternal organizations.

Judge Worthington gave a review of the history of the Johnson Memorial Association, organized twelve years ago, which collected the funds for the purchase of the memorial.

Attack Is Charged To Frostburg Man

Bernard Preston, 25, Held on Girl's Complaint; Companion Sought.

Frostburg, Md., July 4.—Bernard Preston, of this place, was turned over to the Garrett County authorities to answer a charge of criminal assault and has been lodged in jail at Oakland for the action of the December grand jury. Preston, who is 25, is accused by Ethel Rosenberger, 15-year-old school girl, of attacking her.

The girl says she was walking along a side road, near Johnson Church, in Garrett County, when an automobile occupied by three men pulled alongside. Two of the men accosted her and alighted from the car, while the third drove away. She was forced into the woods and assaulted, she said. She found her way home upon being freed and told her parents of the attack.

Sheriff William D. Casteel, of Garrett County, traced the men to Frostburg. The second man sought in connection with the attack is known by the police. The driver of the car was not arrested as he convinced the authorities that he had no knowledge of the case, having driven away when his companions alighted from the car.

ALEXANDRIA JULY 4 WITHOUT ACCIDENTS

Fireworks Privileges Are Used Cautiously; Two Public Entertainments.

ARRESTS REMAIN NORMAL

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
312 S. Washington St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria, 823.

The "safe and sane" Fourth in Alexandria yesterday seems to have been literally what the title implies, for up to a late hour last night no accidents as the result of the use of fireworks had been reported at police headquarters. Several complaints had been received of the abuse of the fireworks privilege, the use of cannon crackers and other explosives which produced an unusual amount of noise, and the annoying of ill persons by the discharge of firecrackers. All these were investigated and remedied. No arrests on serious charges were made, and, so far as the police department was concerned, the day passed quietly.

The two main public or semipublic entertainments were at the municipal swimming pool, with swimming races and exhibition diving, and a general picnic program at the Belle Haven Country Club for members of the club and their friends. Soon after nightfall the entire city was a blaze of light as fireworks were set off for the entertainment of groups of children, for the most part under the supervision of parents.

Hundreds of automobile parties left the city earlier in the day for nearby resorts, and last night many others visited Washington to view the fireworks display on the Monument Grounds.

Several minor automobile accidents were reported, but no cases of injury.

Mrs. Sarah A. Doyle, 61 years old, wife of Edward Doyle, was found dead on a bed at her home, 504 Queen street, yesterday. Mrs. Doyle, who was apparently in her usual health, went to her bedroom and threw herself across the bed. Shortly afterward, Miss Hazel French, a friend, went to Mrs. Doyle's bedroom and attempted to arouse the latter, without success, and summoned Dr. P. B. Pullman, who pronounced her dead, giving heart trouble as the probable cause. According to Dr. Pullman, the woman had been dead more than an hour.

Dr. T. Marshall Jones, city coroner, was summoned, and issued a certificate of death from natural causes.

Mrs. Doyle was a native of Maryland, and, besides her husband, is survived by one son, Earl Doyle, of this city. Three daughters, by a former husband, also survive.

Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

Police Sergt. Sims and Policeman Lawrence Padgett have returned from Baltimore where they went to investigate the report that a man was being held by the authorities there on suspicion of having shot an Alexandria policeman. The man detained was able to convince the police that he was not wanted here, and it developed that he was seen stealing a ride on a freight train in the outskirts of Baltimore. The police of that city had photographs and finger prints of "Kid" Lilly, suspected of shooting and killing Sergt. Charles R. McClary, the night of June 20, and these quickly cleared the suspect of any connection with that crime.

The amount collected to date is $3,384.86, with the proceeds of the ball game of last Saturday and the one tomorrow to be added.

R. H. FORMAN ASKS ARLINGTON'S VOTES

Legislative Candidate Says He Opposes Incorporating County as City.

INDEPENDENCE DAY QUIET

ARLINGTON COUNTY.
BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Robert H. Forman, who has announced he will be a candidate for the Virginia House of Delegates subject to the Democratic primary to be held Tuesday, August 6, last night gave out the following statement:

"My interests in Arlington County are identical with those of the average citizen. I am especially concerned with legislation to benefit the schools, roads, public health and the financial well-being of the county as a whole.

"I am opposed to the incorporation of the county as a city at this time. The loss of State revenue would inevitably result in increased taxes and give nothing more under the city plan than we now enjoy as a gift from the State. If the people of Arlington County desire to modify or change the present form of government, as provided under the Virginia constitution in article 7, section 110, I will, if elected, introduce and urge for enactment into law a referendum whereby the voters of Arlington County may decide what form of government they desire."

In conclusion he says: "As the campaign progresses I will meet all issues as they arise."

Selection of "Miss Arlington" to represent Arlington County and the Arlington Post, American Legion, at the annual State convention which meets in Petersburg early in August will be announced tonight at the carnival being given in Clarendon by the Legion.

Those who have entered the contest are Miss Irene Sheehan, of Fort Myer Heights; Miss Josephine Sterling, Clarendon; Miss Virginia McDonnell and Miss Cora Motzer, Clarendon, and Miss Esther Kendrick, Ballston. The winner will be the one having the largest number of votes. In addition to the trip to Petersburg she will be presented with a silver loving cup by the Arlington County Monarch Club. The carnival will close tomorrow night.

The condition of Hugh Jones, traffic officer of Arlington County, who was seriously injured in an automobile accident late in May, is reported much improved at the Emergency Hospital, Washington.

With not as much as a telephone call to the Arlington County Jail throughout the day, yesterday was enjoyed by the citizens of the county in an unusually quiet manner. Except for the explosion of a few firecrackers it would have been thought a Sunday. Taking advantage of the perfect weather hundreds of citizens motored out into the country, where picnic lunches were enjoyed.

The Arlington Rotary Club will hold its weekly luncheon meeting at noon today at the Washington Golf and Country Club. Dr. R. N. Sutton will preside.

The newly elected officers of Cherrydale Council, Daughters of America, will be installed at Clarendon next Friday night by Mrs. Beulah Kirby, deputy State councilor. Those who will be installed are: Mrs. Grace Leigh, councilor; Miss Martha Marcey, vice councilor; Mrs. Florence Thayer, associate councilor; Mrs. Kathryn Murdock, associate vice councilor; Mrs. Martha Turnburke, junior past councilor; Mrs. Nettie Branson, associate junior past councilor Mrs. Nettie Topley, conductor; Mis Ruth Hutson, warden.

A squadron of airplanes from Bolling Field will swoop down on Lyon Village to make an aerial "attack" tomorrownight, while the 260th Coast Artillery (antiaircraft), a District of Columbia National Guard organization, with guns stationed in the wooded sections of the village, and aided by powerful searchlights, will "defend" the county from the attack. Maj. Walter M. Burns, of Franklin Park, Arlington County, will be in command of the National Guard unit.

It is understood that the batteries will remain in camp in the village over the week-end, and a cordial invitation is extended by Maj. Burns to the public to visit the camp.

President Martin T. Webb, of the Fairfax County Chamber of Commerce, announces a special meeting of the board of directors and chairmen of all district finance committees tonight in the offices of Thomas R. Keith at Fairfax.

The Arlington, Fairfax and Alexandria Real Estate Board will hold its monthly luncheon meeting today at Greenway Downs Tavern, Fairfax County. Reports will be received from delegates who attended the recent national realtors' convention at Boston, Mass.

POLICEMAN IS KILLED IN HOTEL GUN BATTLE

Slayer, Fugitive From 10-Year Jail Term, Captured After He Wounds Second.

WOMAN ALSO IS ARRESTED

Springfield, Ohio, July 4 (A.P.).—A gunman who shot and killed City Detective Oliver Holderby and seriously wounded Detectice Howard Roush in the Arcade Hotel here today, and who later was captured, was identified by the police tonight as Theodore Baraket, 22, of 531 South First street, Louisville, Ky.

Baraket had been accosted in his hotel room by Detectives Oliver Holderby and Howard Roush, who were attempting to check ownership of a stolen automobile he was using. One gun was taken away from him and then as Roush followed Baraket's woman companion to an adjoining room, Baraket produced another gun and the shooting started.

Holderby fell dead. Roush, running to his aid, was shot four times, but continued to fight, and shot Baraket in the nose and twice in the body. The gunman ran out of the building and fled in the stolen car, but was captured by a village officer at South Charleston, Ohio, when he had a doctor treat his wounds.

The woman companion was identified as Leona Smith, of Oakhill, Ohio.

Guarded by police Baraket was held in a hospital here tonight at the point of death from his wounds. On the police blotter he was charged with murder.

Baraket's sudden attack upon the two detectives was a desperate effort to avoid capture and was explained when Bertillon records revealed his identity and police circles disclosed that a ten-year prison sentence was hanging over his head.

They Call It Politics

By CARTER FIELD

EFFORTS of Bishop Cannon and C. Bascom Slemp, heading the Hoovercrats and the Republican regulars, respectively, to unhorse the Byrd-Glass machine in Virginia, are being studied with intense interest by North Carolina politicians of every party and faction.

If the fusion ticket sponsored by Messrs Cannon and Slemp should win control of the Virginia government, the chief thing proved would be that the revolt against Smith and Raskob is still vigorous and can be translated into votes. It would be accepted in the Tarheel State as evidence that the same possibility would exist in North Carolina.

Hence the talk about the Republicans putting up a strong candidate for the seat now held by Senator Furnifold M. Simmons. David H. Blair, until recently Commissioner of Internal Revenue, is being mentioned frequently in this connection despite that he has never been regarded as adept at rabble rousing, and there is the further fact that his health is none too good.

• • • •

THE experiment now being conducted in the Virginia crucible, however, is not as simple as adding two and two. It goes into the higher realms of the science of politics. There are complications. So the result will have to be studied by the North Carolina gentry with extreme care before they can figure out what it all means, even after the votes have been counted.

One of these differences explains the extraordinary wariness of Senator Simmons. It explains why he hastened, after his first statement on the Raskob-Shouse dinner, to put out a much milder one.

His first comment was that "Raskob ought to be unhorsed." His second was that the holding of the dinner was unfortunate. Since then he has said nothing.

• • • •

THIS difference is that in the fight to carry Virginia for Hoover the Byrd-Glass machine fought valiantly for Smith. Senator Glass was more sharply critical of Hoover possibly than any Democratic organization leader in the entire South.

But in North Carolina Senator Simmons, who is and has been to the regular organization of that State what Glass and Byrd combined have been to the Virginia organization, and for something like three times the length of time, did not support Smith. While apparently trying to soft pedal, he finally reached the point of advising first voters to go for Hoover, while many of his lieutenants, including his secretary, Frank Hampton, occupied offices in anti-Smith Democratic headquarters.

Important Democratic leaders said at Houston that they could hold North Carolina for Smith unless Simmons bolted. They talked differently later, but it is fundamental in politics that a politician's judgment some months before a battle is much clearer than during the heat and smoke of the weeks just preceding election.

• • • •

NOW it was apparent both at Roanoke and Richmond, when the two elements seeking to fuse formulated their program to defeat the Byrd-Glass machine, that one of the big issues in the Virginia campaign would be an antimachine drive. Thus an insurgent movement is added to the two existing elements—the Republicans and the anti-Smith-Raskob faction, headed by Bishop Cannon.

In North Carolina the shoe will be on the other foot. Simmons is still titular head, and for that matter the practical head, of the regular Democratic organization. So if there is an insurgent movement in the Old North State it would be against Simmons and not for him.

• • • •

GROWING out of this important difference in the Virginia and North Carolina situations is another angle, which concerns itself with the primaries. In Virginia, Bishop Cannon has, to a large degree, permitted the Byrd-Glass machine to have its own way in the Democratic primary which will nominate the regular Democratic candidate for governor. Cannon proposes to crush the Byrd-Glass organization by permitting it to name its own candidate, and then beating that candidate with the aid of the insurgents plus the regular Republicans.

In North Carolina the Democrats who supported Smith and who would like to punish Simmons for his attitude last year, which they regard as little short of traitorous, will measure very carefully whether they want to put up a candidate against Simmons in the Democratic primary.

The point is that, if they should defeat Simmons in the primary, the support of Simmons' following, plus the full strength which might remain at that time of the anti-Smith-Raskob faction, might move over bodily into the Republican party and result in electing a Republican senator.

• • • •

IF they should decide to permit Simmons' renomination because of this possibility, on the other hand, it would be a serious question of how many of them would be so anxious to punish Simmons that they would vote for the Republican nominee.

Simmons' health is much better than it was last year, and his friends say he has no idea of stepping aside voluntarily.

So a good many telescopes in North Carolina will be turned on Virginia as soon as Bascom Slemp gets back from Europe and the fur begins to fly.

COL. RANDLE KILLS SELF IN CALIFORNIA

Head of District Securities Company Was Widely Known.

BODY MAY BE RETURNED

Ulmo S. Randle, of Randle Station, Md., adopted son of Col. Arthur E. Randle, prominent Washingtonian, whose body was found Wednesday after h. had taken his own life with a shotgun at a lonely spot on a friend's ranch near Santa Barbara, Calif., left last night to take charge of the body. No funeral arrangements will be made until Randle reaches the coast, but it is presumed that the body will be brought back here for burial.

A native of Artesia, Miss., where he was born on January 17, 1859, and a resident of Washington since 1885, Col. Randle had been active in the affairs of the District and of the Nation almost throughout his lifetime. In recognition of his many public services a town, a park, a street, a circle and a school have been named for him here.

Information regarding Col. Randle's death available here is scanty and implies no reason for his suicide. Although he had been in failing health for several years, his condition was reported as greatly improved during recent months.

Col. Randle, a widower, was president of the United Securities Co. here, made his home at Glendale, Md., and also maintained a residence at Randle Highlands, a community which he developed.

At the age of 14, after a grammar school education at Artesia, Miss., Col. Randle entered Shortridge Academy at Media, Pa., later attending the Hollowell Grammar School at Philadelphia, where he was awarded a prize scholarship to the University of Pennsylvania. He was a great-grandson of Col. John Randle, an officer in the Revolutionary War, and a descendant of Earl Randle, of Chester, one of the first of the Anglo-Norman lords appointed to the Parliament of King John after the signing of the Magna Charta. Col. Arthur E. Randle received his commission, when he was appointed to the staff of Gov. Longino, of Mississippi, in 1902.

Shortly before coming to Washington, Col. Randle was associated with his brother, Dr. William Henry Randle, of Philadelphia, who was commissioned by President Hayes in 187— to stamp out the yellow fever plague in the South, and the two brothers spent several years in successful devotion to this task.

Col. Randle was the man responsible for the work of reclaiming the Anacostia Flats, which had been a serious menace to health in the southeast section of the District for many years. Later he developed Randle Highlands, Randle Cliff Beach, Congress Heights, Seabrook and Lincoln. He deeded many miles of land to the District for streets in his numerous developments.

During the World War, in 1918, Col. Randle offered the Government, without charge, the use of his properties for camp sites, and also returned to the Government the Liberty bonds he had bought. Acknowledging these patriotic offers, President Wilson wrote him, saying that although there was some doubt as to the ability of the Government to avail itself of the offer of property, "I will keep the offer in mind in case it should be necessary to avail ourselves of it, and in the meantime, thank you most warmly for making such a generous offer."

Col. Randle is also credited with having started, at a dinner in London in 1899, the movement to make Washington the most beautiful city in the world.

He retired from active business about a year ago. He was a member of the Washington Board of Trade, the Washington Chamber of Commerce, and the New York Chamber of Commerce.

Strikers in Battle With Police; 1 Hurt

1,000 Men in Riot Following Attempt to Operate Street Cars.

New Orleans, La., July 4 (A.P.).—One man was probably fatally wounded here early tonight in a riot between street car company strikers and strikebreakers. More than a thousand men participated in the outbreak.

Joseph Molinary, 60, a trolley worker, was shot through the head, and physicians said his condition was critical. The riot occurred near the Canal Street Barn as 400 strikebreakers, escorted by 50 policemen, marched to the building. As the marchers neared the barn more than 500 striking carmen, armed with sticks, bricks and other heavy objects, rushed them.

Fist fights, club attacks and brick throwing developed, and a free-for-all fight resulted, with police helpless, fearing to shoot into the mass of men.

of those lost in the shifting of the crowd, did not locate her parents on the grounds but she got the "thrill of a lifetime."

Rebecca, realizing that she needed aid, applied to the first park policeman she saw. She eventually was turned over to Policeman G. W. Singleterry who placed her in the sidecar of his motorcycle where she sat in regal splendor as her protector, siren open, sped through traffic to deliver her at home, unharmed and tingling with excitement. There was quite a reunion at the Williams home when Rebecca arrived with her "boy friend."

Park police reported a number of instances of children lost for a short time but returned to parents and friends on the grounds. Boy Scouts, soldiers, sailors and marines also aided in returnig straying youngsters to the parties from whic hthey had wandered.

300 CROWD FT. MYER FOR SEASON TRAINING

District Rookies Start Month's Work Today in Cavalry Class.

COUNTRY'S QUOTA FILLED

Fort Myer's biggest Citizens Military Training camp—an assemblage of more than 300 young men—will enter upon a period of a month's training today. These young citizen-soldiers are recruited from the District of Columbia, Maryland, Pennsylvania, Delaware, New York and New Jersey. As Fort Myer is a cavalry post—the home of the famous Third United States Cavalry—the men who will be there this month will devote themselves exclusively to cavalry training. In Col. Guy V. Henry, the commander of the regiment and the commandant of the post, they will have one of the Army's most renowned cavalrymen as their chief.

The popularity of Fort Myer as a Citizens' Military Training Post is attested by the fact that the total number of students this year, some 320-odd, exceeds by 25 or 30 per cent the largest number ever there before. The enrollment is only limited by the camp facilities. Horsemanship, especially cavalry training, remains endlessly popular with the youth of America. Many lads who were "reds" and "whites" in the preceding two years are coming back this month for their "senior" course as "blues."

The War Department reports that throughout the country, record numbers of citizens will undergo military training this summer. An estimated total of 229,838 officers and men of all grades will be in camp between now and September 1 in the nine different corps areas in the United States and in Hawaii. The Third Corps Area, headquarters Baltimore, which includes the District of Columbia, Virginia, Delaware, Maryland and, in a few cases, New Jersey and New York, has enrollees: 39,279 men, represented by 5,225 officers.; 4,450 C. M. T. C. students, and 18,604 enlisted men.

The C. M. T. C. trainees total, for the entire country, 37,500 young men, which fills the quota for which training facilities are available.

FRANCE DELAYS ACT TO RATIFY U. S. DEBT

incorporated in the act of ratification itself. The radicals further stated:

"Ratification of the war debt agreements must further be subordinated to the policy of settling, in spite of the solidarity of peoples, all international problems."

Rhineland Evacuation Demanded.

Unconditional evacuation of the Rhineland is plainly demanded in this phrase which points to the political advantage the Radicals and Socialists are prepared to take of the government's necessity for ratification of the war debt accords before August 1. There is a clear agreement between the Radicals and Socialists to use the opposition to unconditional ratification running through all parties to cause the downfall of the Poincare government and to set up a Radical-Socialist coalition in its place with either a Radical or a Socialist in the premiership.

A Radical or Socialist premier could go then to London for the international conference at which the Young plan is to be discussed as representative of a French government as Radical as the present government of England and Germany.

The Socialists and Radicals are spurred to this effort also by the belief that settlement of outstanding problems arising from the World War by three leading European prime ministers, all either Socialists or closely allied to Socialism, would establish their party strongly in Europe and give it strength to combat both Conservatives and if the Socialists and the Radical groups succeed in this maneuvre it is commented here that the question of the ratification of war debts will suddenly take on a new and unexpected aspect as the international workers solidarity which would lie behind the power of three labor governments would unquestionably face what is called "American imperialism" with a type of adversary which might prove difficult to handle.

Total Debt of $4,025,000,000.

France's total debt to the United States was fixed by the Franco-American settlement of April 29, 1926, at $4,025,000,000 as of that date, with interest.

The settlement provided for liquidation of this obligation by payment of 62 annuities, the first of which would be made June 15, 1930.

If this agreement is ratified by the French Parliament, as the Poincare government wants it to be, the $400,000,000 due August 1 of this year for war supplies left in France by the A. E. F. would be merged with it.

In 1926 the present value of the debt was computed at $2,008,000,000. Interest on it, under the terms of the Mellon-Berenger agreement would begin at first to 2 per cent, then to 2½ per cent 1 per cent and increase by gradual steps then to 3 per cent and finally to 3½ per cent. If the agreement were carried out to the end France would pay in the course of the 62 years a total of $6,848,000,000 in principal and interest.

SENATE TARIFF BILL IN SEPTEMBER SEEN

Coalition May Change Strategy if Finance Committee Delays Increase.

NEWTON'S VIEWS STUDIED

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

The probability that the tariff bill may be delayed in the Senate finance committee beyond August 19 when the Senate reconvenes may cause the Democratic-Progressive coalition to change its strategy.

Its plans have been shaped for a fight in the Senate. It has not been seriously concerned with the committee hearings but has formulated its plans to rewrite the bill when it gets on the Senate floor.

Any delay in the bill getting there is so much time lost and it is conceivable that so much delay may be incurred in the committee that the coalition will be put in the light of threatening is passage by a prolonged fight in the Senate. Some suggestion of this has already come in statements by Senator Reed Smoot of Utah, chairman of the committee, that the Democrats may cause the bill to go over to the regular session.

It is possible that under the professions of the Democrats that they will cooperate to pass the bill before December does lurk a desire to run the bill into the regular session or at least a lack of concern that this might happen, but it is extremely doubtful if this is the attitude of the other part of the coalition—the Progressive Republicans.

Progressives Want Own Bill.

The Progressive Republicans want a bill and they want it at the extra session. But they want a bill of their making.

As individuals and in pairs they are now out priming themselves on particular subjects in order that they will be able to put up good arguments when the matter comes to debate.

It has been their attitude that there was no purpose to be served in making a fight before the committee. In the first place they are helpless to do so, with only one of their number, Couzens of Michigan, on the committee.

The Senate floor is their battlefield. Here they will be much better fortified.

They will for one thing, and this is all important, be able to determine, or should be, just how the President stands on every controverted item. As each item comes up they should be able to so maneuver the fight that the country will know just who are the "administration" and the "antiadministration" forces in this particular case.

Hoover Seen Against Bill.

The President has frequently been represented as being against the present House bill. It has been represented, in fact, that if the present bill were to come to him he would veto it. But these representations have not come directly from him. There has been nothing on which the finger could be put as being his known attitude. The only direct utterance on his part was that he favored a sugar tariff that would protect both the producer and the consumer.

As to what he would really do if the House bill were to come before him, the action of his secretary, Walter Newton, is about the most tangible thing that has happened since the entire tariff question came up.

As close to the President as Newton is, it is pointed out, he should know Mr. Hoover's views if any one does.

Yet he voted for the House bill which the President has been so freely represented as being against. And having voted for it—it was when Mr. Newton was a member of the House in addition to being a White House secretary—he immediately issued a statement saying in effect that it was a very iniquitous bill, certainly iniquitous in many respects.

If this should be Mr. Hoover's action in the event the House bill or its kind should come to him, the Democratic-Progressive coalition insists the country would be sunk.

For Home Consumption.

Newton's statement, too, generally enough, was not given out for general consumption, but just to his home district. There were indefensible rates in the bill, he said, but then there were also agricultural rates. But the thing that apparently appealed to him was the provision broadening the administrative features which would give the President virtually unlimited tariff power.

In view of the general situation surrounding the President's attitude toward the bill, the coalition insists that it is imperative that there be plenty of time for debate in the Senate. There it will not be a case of whether one is for a limited revision or a general revision in the abstract manner in which the terms are used, but how one stands on every controverted item as it comes up.

It has become apparent that the Senate committee hearings are to be almost as exhaustive as those of the House committee. September 1 may be a conservative estimate of the date when the bill will be finally ready for the Senate.

Pilot Dies in Fire After Plane Crash

W. Q. Kay Is Pinned Under Wreckage; Companion Is Injured.

Marshall, Mo., July 4 (A.P.).—William Q. Kay, about 25, of Airwood, Calgary, Canada, was burned to death and his companion, R. B. Fuller, of Jacksonville, Fla., was injured, near here today when their biplane fell to earth and burst in flames.

Fuller, owner of the plane, managed to make his escape from the burning wreckage, but before he could extinguish his blazing clothes it was too late to answer Kay's repeated call for help. Kay, who was piloting the plane, was pinned in the mass of steel and burned to death.

The pair had taken off from the airport here a few minutes before the accident. About 4 miles south of here the plane went into a vertical bank against the wind, Fuller said, and the ship fell from an altitude of about 150 feet. Kay was known in aviation circles here as a good pilot.

Boy Resents Trio's Jeers; Is Kicked to Death in Fight

John Nolan, 15, Hailed as "Sissy," Because of Wrist Watch, Attempts to Defend Gift of Widowed Mother; Windpipe Dislocated by Blow.

Paterson, N. J., July 4 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Fifteen-year-old John Nolan, of Paterson, was kicked to death today in a fight with a boy who called him a "sissy" for wearing the wrist watch his widowed mother had given him as a graduation present.

Louis Torvello, 16, is too young to remember that men scrambled out of trenches in the world war behind officers who timed the advance by the watches twined with piston lanyards on their wrists. He saw John Nolan walking on Main street today, wearing his new watch.

He leered at young Nolan and called him a sissy, according to Paterson police. Joseph Habd, 15, and Tony Patton, 17, stood with Torvello in the fight. Nolan's wrist watch flashed in the fight with the older boy, but he went down. When the three boys drew back he was choking to death. A kick had dislocated his windpipe. He died as he was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital.

Torvello and Hebd are held on open complaints pending the completion of the police investigation.

Nolan was the only son of Mrs. Ethel Nolan, a widow, who works in the Paterson silk mills. She saved money out of her pay envelope each week to buy him the watch, which he slipped on his wrist when he was graduated from St. John's parochial school in Paterson last week.

Canoe Entering Regatta Upsets; Man Is Drowned

Boston, July 4 (A.P.).—One of the nine members of the Omicron Delta Canoe Club's war canoe crew drowned here today in the Charles River during the New England Amateur Rowing Association's annual regatta. He was Francis Cassidy, of Newton, and his mates capsized in the choppy water while paddling to the starting point. He sank immediately, but his companions clung to their craft and were picked up by the press and police boats.

real whisky and "destroyed" by the Government.

Revenue Department Included.

That the Internal Revenue Department, as well as the Prohibition Department, is involved in the substitution and responsibility for the whisky inasmuch as it must keep a watchful eye on it in connection with the tax.

That none of the 738 barrels found to be affected may be used for medicinal purposes and that it may, under the law, never be used for any purpose, and therefore is a total loss.

The barrels lined up in Frankfort were shipped from a St. Louis warehouse. When the consignment got here seventeen barrels were empty, containing nothing more than air. The seventeen empty barrels were put into the warehouse beside the 104 full ones, although whether these were full of water or of whisky at that time is not known.

Some time later the 121 barrels were transferred to the Sibley warehouse and the seventeen barrels that had come from St. Louis empty, were full again, Sibley warehouse accepted them. Next they were shipped to Frankfort and found to contain water.

BANNED FIREWORKS INJURE 11 PERSONS

badly burned about the eye when a firecracker that he was holding exploded in his face at Fourteenth and Water streets southwest. He was treated at Eergency Hospital and later went to his home.

Careless handling of fireworks at a stand in Greater Capital Heights set off a large number of them, and Charles E. Hoile, 34 years old, the proprietor of the stand, was severely burned about the hands in extinguishing the enhuing fire.

Hoile said that he sold a rocket to a little girl who set it off in front of the stand, the missile shooting into a batch of other fireworks which exploded. Hoile was taken to Casualty Hospital and treated, but his burns are not serious.

Marcus Henson, 29 years old, of 904 K street northwest, was cut and burned on the chin when a firecracker thrown by some unidentified person at Ninth street and New York avenue northwest, exploded as it struck him, and Earl Jewell, 17 years old, of Virginia Highlands, Va., suffered burns to the hands ing in front of his home discharged when a small cannon that he was loadprematurely. Both were treated at Emergency Hospital, and the condition of neither is serious.

Catherine McAllister, 7 years old, of 1407 West Virginia avenue northeast, received burns to the hand when she grabbed a .22-caliber pistol that failed to go off when her brother pulled the trigger. As she grabbed it, the gun exploded. She was treated at Casualty Hospital.

Others who were treated at Casualty Hospital yesterday as a result of firecracker explosions were William Wade, 14 years old, of 320 Fourteenth place northeast; Raymond Baker, 4 years old, of 322 Fourteenth street northeast, and Charles Spinner, 46 years old, of 744 Seventh street southeast. The injuries of none, however, were serious.

Connie M. Gray, colored, 8 years old, of 337 C street southeast, was struck on the right ear by an exploding fire cracker yesterday morning while playing at the rear of her home. She was taken to Emergency Hospital in an ambulance for treatment, but her condition was not serious and she later returned home.

In addition to Hellman, those arrested for discharging the forbidden firecracker were Patrick Joseph Rooney, 54-year-old clerk, of 921 Virginia avenue southwest; William Joseph Carpenter 21-year-old iron worker, of 491 H street southwest; Frederick Somerville, colored, 23 years old, of 405 Smithson's court southwest; and Charles Henry White, colored, 20 years old, of 1948 Third street northwest, all of whom were arrested yesterday afternoon or last night.

Records of the morning session of Police Court revealed that five other persons had been arrested for discharging fireworks. Two of these, Pete Coli and John Lyle, stood trial by the court and were fined $5 each, while the other three, Howard Stevens, William H. Haynghe and Wilmer M. Dowell, elected to forfeit a total of $20 in collateral by failure to come to court.

William Joseph Carpenter, who was arrested by police of the Fourth Precinct for discharging one of the noisemakers in front of his home, several months ago charged officers of the precinct with brutality in breaking into his home and beating him and his family. The charges, however, were not sustained in the subsequent legal action taken by Carpenter.

Saxophone Is Stolen.

Anthony Smothers, colored, of 1608 Thirteenth street northwest, yesterday reported the theft of his E flat alto saxophone, valued at $30, from his home. Police of the Second Precinct, who investigated, are undecided whether the theft was the work of a professional crook or an exasperated neighbor.

TWO BRITISH WOMEN TO SIT WITH LEAGUE

Henderson Gives Commons List of Geneva Delegates; New Cabinet Quizzed.

U. S. TARIFF DISCUSSED

London, July 4 (A.P.).—This was "New Ministers Day" in the House of Commons. The national legislature settled down to regular work and for the first time in this parliament there was a rapid fire of questions. As the cabinet members arose to reply, each was received with cheers from the labor benches.

Philip Snowden, chancellor of the exchequer, said that no representations had been made to the United States to the effect that tariff increases would add to the difficulties of paying the British debt to America. In response to another question, he said that no representation had been made to France regarding payment of the French debt to this country.

The composition of the British delegation to the League of Nations assembly in Geneva in September was announced by Arthur Henderson, new secretary of state for foreign affairs. He said Prime Minister MacDonald would attend part of the time and William Graham, president of the board of trade, also would be there for part of the time. Others in the delegation will be Viscount Cecil, Sir Cecil Hurst, of the foreign office; Hugh Dalton, foreign undersecretary; P. J. N. Baker, member for Coventry; Mrs. H. M. Swanwick, Mrs. Agnes Hamilton and himself.

Two Women on Delegation.

The presence of the two women on this delegation aroused considerable interest. Mrs. Swanick was first president of the Women's International League and is a member of the Parliamentary Labor party. Mrs. Hamilton was recently elected to the House from the Blackburn constituency.

The Conservatives protested that this delegation, with the exception of Viscount Cecil, would be the first one-party delegation sent to Geneva. Mr. Henderson rejoined that he had promised only that the delegation would not be strictly partisan and that the inclusion of the viscount fulfilled that promise. He said also that at the request of the government Viscount Cecil had consented to represent Great Britain on the preparatory disarmament commission.

Viscount Cecil, who was undersecretary of state for foreign affairs and was lord of the privy seal in the Conservative government in 1923-24, has had considerable experience as a British spokesman at Geneva.

Resigned From Naval Parley.

He was a member of the British delegation to the three-party naval conference in 1927, but resigned as a protest against the rigid attitude of his colleagues when the impasse between Great Britain and the United States over cruiser strength was reached.

Replying to further questions, Mr. Henderson intimated the renewal of diplomatic relations with Soviet Russia would not be discussed with the Washington administration.

Another member of the cabinet to make his official debut was Noe Buxton, minister of agriculture. He announced the cabinet had decided against carrying out the Baldwin government's intention to supply only British killed meat and British grown flour to the home defense forces of the army. He said his policy would increase the arms costs.

There was some further debate on the reply to the speech from the throne.

contest during the first two weeks, have been shown at performances at the Fox Theater and the comment on a number of the entrants has been very favorable. Other tests will be shown from week to week until all have had their "bow" before the public.

But the time is very limited in which to enter the contest. The third and final week closes tomorrow night at 6 o'clock and unless you have presented ten subscriptions for a period of one year to The Sunday Washington Post to the circulation manager by that hour, there will be no screen test for you.

All sorts of people have already entered the competition, for there is no limit as to age, sex or residence. The movies want child stars, young men and women for juvenile parts, and older men and women for character roles. It is types, rather than finished ability, that the executives are seeking, and for that reason none need fear that inability to perform before the camera will hinder his or her opportunity to finish among the first ten.

The first ten selected by the judges as the best possibilities among the entire group will each receive a six months' pass to the Fox Theater as well as the chance of being selected for a part in some picture by the Fox Company.

Each contestant will likewise receive the strip of film on which his or her test is made. All details of the contest may be obtained from John E. Campbell, director-producer, on the fourth floor of The Post Building, or by calling National 4205.

Berlin Police Quell Students' Outbreaks

Berlin, July 4 (A.P.).—Two student demonstrations were dispersed by police today, and, while blackjacks were used to quell a fight between rival groups, no serious injury resulted. Some 1,500 students gathered first in front of the university and staged a noisy street meeting in protest to government interference with "academic liberties" in connection with speeches on the anniversary of the treaty of Versailles. Communist students attempted a counter-demonstration.

Another student demonstration was staged in front of the statue of Bismarck, the "iron chancellor." The manifestants dispersed after they had sheered Bismarck's memory.

BUS CRASH WHICH HURT TWO

Hugh Miller, Post Staff Photographer.

Two persons were injured yesterday afternoon when this Washington Railway & Electric Co. bus ran into a lamp pole at Twentieth and M streets northwest as the driver swerved to avoid another machine at the intersection.

Boy, 5, Loses Two Teeth In Plunge of 50 Feet

New York, July 4 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Joseph McCarthy, 5 years old; fell 50 feet today from the fire escape of his home on the fourth floor at 2111 Dean street, Brooklyn. Neighbors rushed to the yard, expecting to find him dead. But Joseph scrambled to his feet and started to skip away, apparently none the worse for the mishap. Dr. Dankenberg, of Unity Hospital, examined him and pronounced him sound.

Then Joseph grinned and revealed that, contrary to the doctor's diagnosis, he had not escaped unscathed. Where once two front teeth had defied the toughest apple core in the city, there was now a gaping vacancy.

Rescue Squads Are Busy As Flood Hits Toronto

Toronto, July 4 (A.P.). — The worst flood in years in the beaches district here was caused today by a southeast wind that increased in intensity throughout the day. The life-saving crew was called out to remove residents in boats from their inundated homes, and under the pounding of the waves the newly installed groynes proved practically useless. Emergency equipment was sent for to rescue a man in a canoe 200 feet offshore who was unable to land. A life guard attempted to reach him without success.

FIVE PERSONS HURT IN HOLIDAY CRASHES

and-run driver at Sec " and B streets northwest. Ryder was found lying in the street in front of 220 Second street by Gus Miller, of 66 C street northwest, who took him to the hospital in his automobile. He was treated by Dr. J. E. McClain for bruises on his shoulder and hip. His condition was not serious an' later he returned to his home.

Two automobile accidents involving colored motorists occurred on Q street northwest, five blocks apart, within five minutes shortly before 8 o'clock last night.

Laura Belle Mickie, 31 years old, of 1244 Eighth street northwest, suffered bruises on the head when the car in which she was riding with her husband, W. H. Mickie, 20 years old, collided at Q and Ninth streets with a machine driven by William Edward, 32 years old, of 739 Girard street northwest.

Lansing Gray, 20 years old, of 1421 Hopkins street northwest, sustained a broken hip when the machine in which he was riding with his father, M. N. Gray, 43 years old, collided with a car operated by Walter Burton, 43 years old, of 23 L street northwest, at Q and Fourth streets. Gray was treated at Freedmen's Hospital.

Most of the motorists who give the Police Department its bad moments apparently took advantage of the holiday to get out of town early yesterday, judging from the number of arrests. On the blotters at the various precincts, only 43 arrests were entered by all 14 precincts for traffic violations, while the members of the traffic squad accounted for only 48, and two of those had no connection with traffic offenses, one being a drunk and the other an arrest for vagrancy, thus holding the day's toll of actual traffic arrests down to 89, most of which were for speeding.

Another factor which may have been instrumental in minimizing the number of arrests was that Motorcycle Officer R. V. Sinclair, who counts that day wasted when he makes less than 50 arrests for everything from parking more than 6 inches from the curb to failing to give proper hand signals, took the day off.

Two Jailed on Rum Charges.

Among the early arrests chalked up yesterday were Lawrence Henderson, 28 years old, of 923 V street northwest, a chauffeur, and William Liggins, 23 years old, of 1768 Willard street northwest, a laborer, picked up by Motorcycle Officer S. T. Johnson, of the Traffic Squad, with fourteen quarts of alleged liquor in their automobile. They were jailed on charges of transportation and illegal possession.

One other accident under the heading of traffic but not involving operation of a motor vehicle occurred when Miss Florence Barnhart, 21 years old, of 1343 Clifton street northwest, suffered minor injuries early yesterday when she fell from a street car loading platform at Tenth and Pennsylvania avenue northwest. She was treated at Emergency Hospital by Dr. J. E. McClain for lacerations and bruises of the leg, and later went home.

Independence Day failed to slow up the strict campaign being waged by the courts and the police against violators of the traffic regulations.

Silver Spring Man Hurt As Auto Hits Iron Pillar

James Preston Barnes, of Silver Spring, Md., was critically injured early yesterday, when his automobile crashed into the iron pillar which supports the viaduct under the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad tracks on Georgia avenue at Silver Spring.

The injured man was taken to the office of Dr. Howard Howlett and given first aid. He was then taken to the Walter Reed Hospital, where it was found that he was suffering from internal injuries and shock.

Howlett was driving a light roadster north on Georgia avenue and as he approached the viaduct, another automobile came from the other direction, crowding him from the road. His automobile crashed head on into the iron pillar on the viaduct, demolishing the front end of the car. The injured man did not know the identity of the other driver.

CURRENT EVENTS IN VIRGINIA AND MARYLAND

SPIRITED HORSES VIE AT CULPEPER SHOW

Record Crowd Attends Opening of Annual Exhibit; Classes Well Filled.

JUVENILE RIDERS SCORE

Special to The Washington Post.

Culpeper, Va., July 4.—Before the largest crowd ever to attend such an affair in Culpeper, the annual Culpeper Horse Show opened today. At checking-up time tonight F. D. Gaskins, manager, announced that between nine and ten thousand persons had witnessed the show.

Large classes marked every event, the free-for-all for hunters and jumpers, having 34 entrants while the class for hunters which had not won blue ribbons prior to this year had 62. This event was won by Jea Zee, the entry of D. B. Smith, of Warrenton. Baby Ben, the big black son of Devildog, performed beautifully at the jumps, taking all with ease, but failed to take a prize. Competent judges of horseflesh said he lost only because of his size and build.

Broken Glass, the star performer of the stable of Mrs. D. N. Lee, took the blue in the class for heavy and light weight hunters. Mrs. Lee is the holder of the Culpeper challenge plate. Close followers of Virginia horse shows expressed the belief that Broken Glass would gain her a hold on the new plate, offered in hunter championship on the second day of the show.

Billy Garth Jones a Winner.

Billy Garth Jones, nine years old, riding Ginger in the pony class, won from the Anderson entry, Nigger, and rode his entry, Pepp, under the wire first in the pony race.

None of the show ring classes was one-sided. In none of the events was it possible to say who would get the ribbons, yet all were satisfied with the decisions of the judges, Frank Garber, of Harrisonburg; Julian Morris, of Keswick, and Carl Furr, of Upperville.

In the races in the afternoon, things were not so close. In several the winner came in under wire many yards ahead of the field.

In the open half-mile Russ Chief got away in the lead and was never challenged. Enforcement came through from a crowded field for second, but could not get close to the leader.

Rock Age made a one-horse affair of the mile race, although there were nine starters. Trouble was had in getting this bunch away from the barrier, Starter Harris spending nearly 15 minutes before he got them in line.

The closest event of the day was the special race provided to take care of the extra starters. When the barrier went up all the horses got away in a bunch. Rock Spa held the lead to the last, but once in the homestretch, weakened, and finished with the head of Leesburg Lass at her neck.

In the steeplechase, the feature of the day, Radio came from behind in a nine-horse field and took the lead, winning by yards.

Man Weds Mail Order Bride Hour After They First Meet

Luray Widower, 60 Years Old, Greets Woman at Station After Matrimonial Agency Courtship, and Marries Her as Soon as They Get License.

Special to The Washington Post.

Luray, Va., July 4.—Within an hour last night after they had met for the first time, the marriage of I. N. Short, a 60-year-old widower of this county, and Mrs. Martha F. Blue, of Springfield, Ohio, had taken place at the home of the officiating minister, the Rev. H. J. Dudley, of Luray.

Mrs. Blue, upon request of the prospective groom, had come to Luray from Ohio to be married to Mr. Short, if she liked his appearance and if Mr. Short was pleased with her. As soon as Mr. Short saw Mrs. Blue alight from a Norfolk & Western Railroad train in Luray she was recognized by a white ribbon worn on her left arm. Mrs. Blue also recognized Mr. Short by a similar sign on his left arm. An automobile whisked Mr. Short and Mrs. Blue to the office of County Clerk Grover C. Miller, where a marriage license was obtained. A few minutes later the couple were married by the Rev. Mr. Dudley, of the Disciples Church.

Mrs. Blue arrived in Luray on a train due here a few minutes after 10 o'clock. Within forty minutes after the first meeting they had been married and were on their way to Leaksville, the home of the bridegroom, five miles southwest of Luray. Their acquaintance began through a Western matrimonial agency. Photographs had been exchanged before last night's meeting. Mr. Short's first wife died several years ago. He has six children and as many grandchildren.

Warns Against Centralization of Government in Speech at Chatham.

STATE HISTORY IS TRACED

Special to The Washington Post.

Chatham, Va., July 4.—Pittsylvanians on holiday turned from bloomered New York baseball girls this afternoon to affairs of state, and heard Senator Walter Mapp deliver an Independence Day patriotic address, into which he wove his ideals of State government. He did not mention his opponent, and thrust himself into the background, spending most of his time in tracing the history of suffrage development in Virginia since colonial days, and using it as an argument against centralized government.

"At the bottom of the move to centralize our State government," he said, "there is one of two things—either a deep-rooted distrust of the intelligence of the masses or a deep-rooted fear of the intelligence of the masses. If you belong to that group who believe that the fewer the voters the easier they are to handle, that the masses are too ignorant to vote intelligently, then I am helpless to make you see the point of view of the opposition, and I invite you to be logical and make the reform complete by abolishing all elections."

After tracing constitutional reform he said, "When I see repeated references to conditions prior to 1850 quoted in support of the short ballot, I am led to wonder if it is the intention of those favoring the reform ultimately to take Virginia back to the aristocracy of the past.

"We are threatening to start back downhill to the errors and tyrannies of other days, and it must be a discouraging and disconcerting spectacle to those who are viewing us from outside."

In defining an ideal government, the candidate said: "Viewed solely from the standpoint of efficiency and economy, ideal government is probably an absolute despotism provided you can be sure of your patriotism, the ability, the wisdom and energy of the despot."

ORANGE HORSE SHOW TO BE SOCIAL EVENT

Some of the Best Thoroughbreds in Section Are to Seek Prizes.

PURSE TO EXCEED $2,000

Special to The Washington Post.

Orange, Va., July 4.—With Mrs. Thomas H. Somerville, the former Marion du Pont, nationally known horsewoman, as president, the thirteenth annual exhibition of the Orange Horse Show and Racing Association here, July 24 and 25, promises to be one of the big society and sporting events of the horse show in Virginia. Mrs. Somerville, who owns a talented string of show and race horses, is giving much of her time to arrangements for the show, one of the most important on the Virginia circuit, and indications are that the 1929 event will prove the banner one of the season.

A total of 37 show ring events and four races are listed on the program announced today by H. C. Warren, secretary. Purses totaling more than $2,000 are offered. New features include hunter trials for both horses and ponies. Handsome plate is offered in a number of classes, in addition to prize money. The entries will close July 12. Dr. Francis Powell, Morris Dixon and Henry Cullins have been announced as the judges.

Saddle horses will be a big feature of the show this year, with the leading performers on the circuit competing for honors. The list includes Marse Henry, champion of the Richmond show, owned by E. W. Noble; Marcorita, from the same stable, several times a winner in Kentucky and elsewhere; Diana Mayo, from the menage of A. G. Rolfe, of Richmond, runner-up to Marse Henry at Richmond; Inspiration, owned by Miss Evelyn Nesbit, of Warrenton and Pittsburgh, and The Goucher, owned by Wilbur Osborne.

In the hunter classes the leading stables in Virginia and nearby States will be represented. To win at Orange a horse must be a good one. The jumps are stiff and difficult. Only the best horses are entered for the events. Annually Orange attracts a host of horse enthusiasts from New York, Washington, Baltimore, Pittsburgh, Richmond and other points. The prospects point to a record entry list this year and a crowd exceeding all previous marks.

PROSECUTION RESTS IN KING MURDER CASE

Defense to Begin Fight for Life of Alleged Wife-Slayer This Morning.

THIRD DEGREE IS CHARGED

Chester, S. C., July 4 (A.P.).—The State ended its efforts to weave a net of circumstantial evidence around Rafe King this afternoon at 4:35 o'clock.

As soon as Solicitor Harry Hines announced that the State rested, Attorney Thomas F. McDow, of the defense, asked Judge J. K. Henry for a recess until tomorrow morning, when the defense will begin its battle for King's life. The 37-year-old man is on trial in the Chester County court of general sessions for the murder of his 24-year-old wife, Faye Wilson King, whose body was found in an outhouse at their home in Sharon, S. C., January 25. During the three days since the State began its testimony, 38 witnesses have been heard.

The charge that third-degree methods were used by York County authorities after the arrest was made by Attorney John H. Hemphill in objecting to the State's examination of a York County rural police officer, John A. Jackson, today. The attorney told Judge Henry the defense objected to any testimony as to what King had told this officer, since such methods were used. Judge Henry did not sustain his objection, however, and Attorney John A. Marion, before continuing his questioning, asked if any force or harsh methods had been used, to which the officer replied in the negative.

Jackson testified that King told him he knew his wife had been killed and that she was not killed where the body was found. Jackson said he told King, "If you would tell the truth we could find out who killed her," and that later King said he believed a negro who came to his home about dark the night her body was found was responsible.

King said he did not know who this negro was.

The witness also testified he heard Will King, brother of the defendant, say on the day of the inquest, "You have talked too much now." The remark was said to have been addressed to King.

VIRGINIA'S POLITICAL REACTION.

Progressive State government is sorely in need of a champion in Virginia. In both the Republican and Democratic parties spirited opposition to the constitutional amendments, which centralize the executive authority in the governor, has developed. No one has appeared to defend the amendments in spite of their general approval by students of political science.

Last year the people ratified the so-called "short ballot" provisions under which the State treasurer, the superintendent of public instruction and the secretary of agriculture are to be appointed by the governor, subject to confirmation by the General Assembly. The arrangement gives the governor a "cabinet" of administrative officials who are responsible to him. It makes the chief executive, instead of half a dozen minor elective officers, responsible for administration of the State's affairs. Similar reforms have been adopted in a number of other States, but Virginia wished to be cautious. It was therefore decided that after 1932 the General Assembly should have the authority to determine how these officials shall be selected. The way is open for a return to the "long ballot" without repealing the amendments.

In spite of this safeguard against failure of the short ballot there is a determined movement for repeal of the amendments. The Republican convention condemned the principle of central administration, as the anti-Smith Democrats had previously done. However, Robert Angell, State Republican chairman, was a member of the commission which recommended the changes and assisted in the campaign for their adoption. But since the Republican-anti-Smith groups have condemned the amendments in their joint platform, the followers of Angell would have to bolt from the coalition to support the short ballot reform.

On the Democratic side G. Walter Mapp, aspirant for the gubernatorial nomination, is blaming the Republicans for adoption of the amendments and asking for a return of power to the people. His opponent for the nomination, John G. Pollard, favors a centralized administration, but in seeking to please all elements he denies that it is an issue in the coming campaign. He has issued a statement in which he refers to the amendments as an experiment, and says the question will be decided in the same way, no matter who is governor. Those who are interested in making the governor a powerful figure to whom the State can look for constructive leadership, will regret the lack of active support for the short ballot in the Virginia campaign. It will be unfortunate if the amendments are annulled for purely political purposes before they become effective.

SHOULD HE SAY YES?

Woman's new-found emancipation has made man's task more difficult. No longer is he sovereign in his home; no longer does woman look upon the mate she chose "for better or for worse" as the supreme being to whose every whim she must cater. Instead, the new woman expects her husband to subscribe to a 50-50 doctrine; she expects him to pitch in and help in the domestic duties, to share with her the family's business and economic problems and to realize that she is a human being with feelings that are to be respected. Prof. Charles C. Peters, of Pennsylvania State College, now comes to the aid of the new woman with a "blueprint of the domestically efficient husband" with which, it is suggested, men under consideration as possible husbands can be accurately rated.

Prof. Peters says "the domestically efficient person should be able to meet the economic problems of family life," under which classification he lists 40 minor requirements such as the ability to repair plumbing, to care for sinks, to manage a furnace and to "sell at a maximum advantage old clothing and old furniture." In addition, the domestically efficient male should be able to care for clothing, keep it in repair and protect it from light and moths. The "care of children" is the second large classification, and Prof. Peters says that the ideal mate should be able to bathe, dress and feed his children, mend their clothes and tell them stories. The ideal husband must also be able to beautify the house and lawn and he must be able to continue after marriage the "tactics of pre-marital courtship."

All in all, Prof. Peters' "blueprint" must be considered a rather remarkable document. It should aid wavering women to make up their minds, and it will be considered relatively unimportant that it may make man's lot harder. In fairness to the so-called stronger sex, however, Prof. Peters might at least have suggested whether men who fill the specifications laid down should accept the first woman who proposes.

DUTY ON AUTOMOBILES.

The proposal for removal or material reduction of the tariff on automobiles is unimportant from an economic point of view, but it may have considerable political significance. A large portion of the American automobile manufacturers would, no doubt, have no objection to placing motor cars on the free list. It is a matter of indifference to them because few foreign cars are marketed here. Why, then, should a 25 per cent ad valorem duty continue in effect?

The principal object of a tariff is the protection of industry and labor. When protection is no longer needed, there is no reason for maintenance of the tariff wall. The United States produces nearly 82 per cent of all the automobiles of the world. England is the nearest competitor with 5.5 per cent, France with 4.6 per cent, and Canada with 4.3 per cent. All other nations combined contribute but 4 per cent. American automobiles reach every civilized country. Under present conditions attempts to compete with American mass production, even in foreign markets, are futile. Obviously, the need for protection has passed.

An unnecessary duty upon a foreign product tends to get the country into the habit of building the wall constantly higher, without thinking of reductions. Such a policy tends not only to exclude small imports which would not interfere with American production, but creates an unfavorable impression abroad. It is not to be supposed that the placing of motor cars on the free list would induce foreign countries to reduce their automobile tariffs, but they might be less disposed to adopt tariff reprisals.

There may be many other items now dutiable which could be placed on the free list without injuring producers. If so they ought to be ferreted out by the finance committee. The tariff should be subject to revision in both directions for the benefit of the American people.

FASHIONS FOR MEN.

For many decades there have been mutterings against what would-be reformers dub the absurdly conventional, the monotonously uniform and the wholly uncomfortable attire of men. Attempts to effect anything approaching a radical change were, however, met with such stolid aloofness or even with such obstinate opposition on the part of members of the male persuasion that, as a rule, these attempts died a-borning, and the most that enthusiastic advocates of the esthetic or practical preachers of the comfortable could compass was a slight alteration of width in the trousers or of line in the coat, with the tout ensemble continuing to be pretty much as before. Some designers were alive to the possibilities implied in the various suggestions made, but most tailors and outfitters, weighted down with the vis inertiae, remained conservative and apathetic, and thus many a golden opportunity was lost.

But tyranny, whether it be in the body politic or in social custom, will eventually become unbearable. Hence one finds, without much surprise, that a really determined and well-organized effort is now on foot to bring about a complete change in the habiliments of men. What might be surprising is that the movement has originated in conservative England; but such is the case. The Men's Dress Reform Party was first announced on June 11, and immediately applications for membership began to pour in on every mail from all parts of the country and from every class in the social scale. The rebellion against the present style of men's dress seems to be well-nigh universal in the British Isles. Saturday, last, was Men's Dress Reform Day, when every one, in town and country alike, was urged to wear hygienic dress, suited to individual taste and purse, but along lines laid down in general principles previously promulgated. There is to be a rally in a London hall this week, and thereafter dances, fetes, and dress competitions will be held.

The secretary of the new organization, Alfred C. Jordan, C. B. E., M. D., thus outlines some of the projected changes:

> What reforms are desired? Most members wish for shorts; a few for the kilt; nearly all hate trousers. Some plead for less heavy materials and less padding; others for brighter colors; but the villain of the piece is the collar-stud. A wail has gone up throughout the land; man is clutching at his throat and crying, "Release me from the strangle-band!" The collar-stud must go—and go now! At present man has only one way to comfort—to make holiday in an open-fronted shirt and a pair of shorts. But he wants to be sensibly dressed for work, too, and his holiday clothes are not fit for town wear. He must have clothes of really good materials; shirts of rayon or fine poplin; jacket-and-shorts suits (or jacket-and-kilts suits) of fine worsted or cashmere; good stockings to match. The fit and cut must be beyond reproach. The outfit must, in fact, be both smart and attractive. There should be no braces or waistcoat, so that a man might remove his jacket on a hot day and still retain his good looks and his fair name!

Braces, it should, perhaps, be explained, is English for suspenders. What a revolution it will be to see men going about London in shirt, "shorts," and belt—London, where the silk hat, the morning coat, the waistcoat, and the long trousers, supported by "braces," were, until quite recently, absolutely de rigueur.

According to Dr. Jordan, the "trade" is now wide-awake, and is going to help, so that it is easily possible that the startling reform, sponsored by him and his associates and apparently backed by public opinion, has come to stay.

CITY OF THE FUTURE.

A most disheartening view of the future American city was presented at the annual convention of League for Industrial Democracy. Stuart Chase, technological critic, pictured the future city as a labyrinth of steel abysses, resting on an ever-weakening substructure, compressing noxious vapors, storing human carbon monoxide and fatally exposed to gas attacks from the air. He referred to two possibilities of development. First, it is possible for the city to become "more and more congested, hectic and biologically alien to an ordered human life, its vast transportation systems pumping us back and forth from places where we would rather not live to places where we would rather not work," until a breakdown occurs. Second, it is possible that these horrors may be avoided by careful city planning. Mr. Chase seems to assume that the first course will be followed.

The address was particularly interesting to New Yorkers. But inasmuch as cities are growing rapidly in all parts of the country its forebodings will not be lost upon other city dwellers. There is little probability, however, that even this gloomy outlook will in any way turn the tide of city migration back toward the farms. Every indication points to further concentration of population in large cities and all the opprobrium that can be heaped upon the metropolis will have no effect whatever on this evolution. But if the cities awaken to a consciousness of their own destiny they will preclude any possibility of fulfilling this gloomy prediction by regulating their development.

It is unfair to the human race to assume that future generations will keep on building skyscraper upon skyscraper without turning attention to the problems thus created. Science and engineering have made the modern city possible; science can be depended upon to make future living conditions in congested areas not only tolerable but pleasant. Already movements are underway to eliminate the obnoxious gas given off by motor cars, and to reduce the noise of transportation systems. Huge buildings are no longer constructed without due consideration to light and ventilation, and every metropolis is striving to extend the area of its parks and playgrounds.

There is no reason to assume that unregulated building, which is detrimental to health and comfort, will be permitted in the great cities of the future. The demand for zoning and city planning is constantly gaining ground. If science is applied to living conditions as well as to engineering problems, there is no reason why the city of the future should become uninhabitable.

WHAT ABOUT OVER-PRODUCTION?

From the Monthly Bulletin of the National City Bank.

The farm relief act seems to go as far as legislation can go to overcome the handicap under which farming as an industry has been alleged to be laboring. When Congress does not know what to do with a problem the natural action is to create a new commission or board to study it. This to all practical purposes is what has been done in the present instance.

The board should become a competent authority in the field of agriculture, able by reason of its broad survey to give useful counsel and possibly serve as a safeguard against ill-advised agitation. It will find the best opportunity for useful activities in the field of production, rather than in the field of prices. The secret of effective price control is in regulation of production. Given over a term of years an average production of a given product no greater than the average consumption, and it would be no great problem to stabilize prices, but stabilization at what is generally accepted as a satisfactory price will almost certainly stimulate production.

The advocates of this legislation are saying that it will give stability to agriculture as the Federal Reserve System does to the banking business, which suggests that the Federal Farm Board may well have an early conference with the Federal Reserve Board concerning the difficulties which the latter has experienced in trying to regulate the supply of credit.

In so far as the demand for legislation was based upon erroneous beliefs concerning the actual state of the farming business and the cause of unsatisfactory prices, nothing will come of it, and there is reason to believe that to a great extent such was the case.

The real cause of unsatisfactory prices is to be found in the fact that production has been increasing faster than population, while the per capita consumption of the staple food products has been declining. Dr. O. E. Baker, senior economist of the Bureau of Economics, Department of Agriculture, is authority for the statement that since the war, notwithstanding low prices, the increase of agricultural production has been more rapid than at any time since 1900, and this despite a decrease in the farm population and a slight decrease in crop acreage. Dr. Baker also says that the present farm population of this country is sufficient to provide for the increasing need of farm products over the next ten years.

Farm population of the United States as estimated for each year from 1922 to 1929 by the Department of Agriculture, has been as follows:

1922	30,200,000	1926	28,502,000
1923	29,800,000	1927	27,853,000
1924	29,400,000	1928	27,699,000
1925	28,981,000	1929	27,511,000

Decline from January 1, 1922, to January 1, 1929, 2,689,000.

Judging by the comments upon this population movement usually offered by the advocates of farm relief legislation, the Farm Board will be expected to accomplish a reversal, or at least a cessation, of this movement; but what would the situation have been if this migration from the farms had not occurred and the production of the farms had been correspondingly greater? Or what if the migration had not occurred and production had been only the same as with the diminished number to be supported by the farms? Would not the situation have been worse than it is?

What will be the situation in the future if artificial prices for farm products shall cause a cessation of the migration from the farms, and improvements in methods of production continue to give an increased production per farm worker and per capita of the population?

These questions go to the heart of the problem with which the Farm Board has to deal, for the trend of production will have more influence upon the general trend of prices than all the stabilization corporations that can be organized, backed though they may be by the United States Treasury.

PLEASURE.

He gave his life to pleasure and laughed
a little while,
But pleasure has no courage to trudge
the rugged mile,
And pleasure's ways are fickle. When there are loads to bear
She turns her back upon the friend and leaves him to his care.

Her hands are soft and jeweled, unused to common toil,
She'll dance about the garden, but will not till the soil.
The friends who wait upon her must romp the hours away,
But if they talk of duty then pleasure
will not stay.

And those who come to worship at pleasure's gaudy throne
Must leave all care behind them and bow to her alone,
And they must turn from courage and let their hands grow soft
And keep their eyes upon the ground and never look aloft.

He gave his life to pleasure, but when his skies turned gray
And care and want attacked him, she left him in a day.
She left him soft and feeble and dull of eye and frail,
With neither strength nor courage to follow duty's trail.

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad to a Flapper Daughter.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

MY DEAR LOUISE:

At times your age and sex tempt you to be like the little boy who resolved to eat worms. The little boy, you will remember, pretended to believe that nobody loved him.

That pretense, however, was not the cause of this unhappiness. His world had offended him and he loved nobody. Because he loved nobody, life seemed empty and profitless.

I am reminding you of the story because it reveals a great and eternal truth and the understanding of it is essential to your future happiness.

It isn't the love we get that makes us happy, but the love we give.

I do not get the maximum of happiness from you when you love me most, but when I love you most. As a matter of fact, I do not know at any time whether you are loving me more or less than you loved me an hour before. But when some act or word of yours, or some thought of you when you are absent, fills my heart with a warm and tender affection for you, that is the time when you afford me the greatest measure of joy.

It is the giving of love that makes life endurable. God commands his creatures to love him—not because he has need of their love, but because he understands the ways and needs of the human heart and knows that loving him will bring men happiness.

A mother's chief joy consists in the love she gives her children. It can't come from their love for her, for she doesn't know how much or how little they love her. And when they grow older and become almost indifferent to her, she will love them still, and still her love will give her happiness.

When young people fall in love, their ecstasy does not come from being loved but from loving. They are in love with love. They revel in it—delight in it—thrill to the bliss and the torture of it. They are happy because they love.

I tell you these things because I want you to learn that happiness is yours for the taking, all your life long, if you will cultivate the art of loving people.

The one who hungers for a friend merely hungers for some one to love, and if you learn to love many, you will have many to afford you joy.

Another's hate can not harm you. You may not be aware of it. But your own hate makes life bitter and ugly and robs you of every pleasure.

So it is with love also. While you have some one to love, you will be happy. But if you become selfish or devote yourself to a career and become indifferent to friends, you are destined to be miserable though millions love you.

Great men are lonely—not because they are unloved, but because they love nobody.

Learn to love much and much will be your happiness. DAD.

MECHANICAL GIANTS.

Mechanical giants which perform the work of thousands of Chinamen are now in use as the dependable aids of America's newest essential industry, the extraction of tung oil from the meats of nuts gathered from heavy-bearing Chinese trees raised successfully in the southern parts of the United States, says Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Science acclaims tung oil as the finest drying oil and base for paints and varnishes known to modern industry. It is a valuable material of a thousand new uses, as yet unrealized, because China, which has previously controlled the world output, refused to standardize its production by the substitution of mechanical appliances for the unsatisfactory haphazard hand labor employed there.

Tung oil is necessary in the manufacture of waterproofing, quick-drying paints and varnishes. The electrical industry reports the oil essential in the manufacture of the insulating compound used in dynamos, cables and wire coatings. All the exterior varnished parts of naval and commercial ships are finished with tung oil. This oil is an important ingredient in automobile brake linings. The gaskets on steam pipes, pumps and engines are held together with tung oil. The undercoat finish of your new motor car relies on this material for its moisture resistance Tung oil would also enter more extensively into the manufacture of all paints, linoleum, oilcloth, and other waterproof materials, if there was enough of it available in the United States for such purposes. Research specialists say these are but a few of the ever-increasing uses to which this drying oil could be put. More than 250,000 gallons a year are employed in enameling the tubes, which are used as containers for cosmetics, shaving cream and other toilet preparations.

Some twenty years ago, the U. S. Government, sensing the international importance of tung oil and the many drawbacks in oriental control of the market, secured experimental seed and started cultural experiments in several States. Eventually it was discovered that north central Florida, which lies in the same latitude as the leading Chinese tung-oil groves, was suited to these trees.

The Federal Department of Agriculture and the Florida State station experimented for years, checked and rechecked results before they ultimately announced that the success of tung-oil-tree growing was assured. The American Paint and Varnish Manufacturers Association cooperated in the experiments.

How compete with cheap Oriental labor was the critical question which arose after the investigators ascertained that "oil farming" was practical.

Mechanical ingenuity and inventive resourcefulness solved the riddle. One thousand Chinamen, who work for 15 cents a day, can not perform as much work as a small mechanized and electrified plant which research has perfected for the extraction of commercial oil from the nuts.

More Improvement.

Philadelphia Inquirer: Commissioner Whalen, of New York, has issued a book telling police "what to do." This, it seems to us, is a work of supererogation. The average New York cop knows what to do; his chief deficiency seems to be that there are so many times when he doesn't seem to know what not to do.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

The Time Is Not Ripe for the Reduction of Naval Armaments; Both England and America Should Continue to Build Such Ships as They Need.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: As a native of England, and as a sincere friend of the United States of America, I consider it my duty, most respectfully, to suggest that it would be unwise and dangerous for either nation to reduce its navy at the present date. The time to cast away our arms has not yet arrived: the possibility of war was never greater than it is today.

To begin with the situation of England: The British Empire rules over one-fourth of the entire population of the world; and that empire is founded upon force, a force which is, in the main, represented by the British navy. (I am not defending, or condemning the use of force by Great Britain to maintain its empire, I am merely stating the facts.) To reduce the British navy would be to weaken the foundations of the empire. The navy and the empire stand and fall together. Let us turn to the United States.

The United States of America should, if anything, largely increase its navy. The American people do not know how dangerously hostile many European countries now are to their great republic. I know Europe, and can speak several languages, and am in a position to state the facts. This hostility is, in the main, due to the enormous war-debts owed to America, resulting in a high European taxation. To shake off this burden of debt, certain European countries would be capable of combined action. The American navy should be strong enough to defeat a possible combination of European and Asiatic hostile fleets. I am of the opinion that without a thought of competition or rivalry, and for defense alone, both England and America should continue to build such warships as they may require. Very sincerely,

"DEFENSE, NOT DEFIANCE."

Ambassador Dawes Commended for Making Embassy Dry.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: No better reason has been or could be given than the one Gen. Dawes, our now already popular and successful Ambassador to England, gave in his announcement a few days ago, banning intoxicating liquors from his embassy, and stating that they would not be used or served there during his incumbency. He says he does not have or serve liquor in his home in the States and sees no reason for serving it in his embassy. Thus, in a few words, he expressed himself upon the subject of both intoxicating liquor and prohibition, and in a way that completely spiked the guns of the wet press.

The three principal points in the editorial criticism of Ambassador Dawes by the wets are (1) that it would lessen the number of callers at the embassy and the attendance at embassy functions; (2) that the secretaries and personnel of his embassy would not follow, but, repudiate his decision and action; and (3) that in all our other embassies and legations intoxicating liquors would be used and served, regardless of either Ambassador Dawes' action, or the policy and feelings of President Hoover on the liquor question and law observance. As to (1)—I am sure the ambassador will not shed any tears because of the absence at his embassy of those whose only purpose in going would be to satisfy their liquor craving at his expense. As to (2)—The wet editors have not the slightest basis for such a statement. No such disrespect or rebelliousness will be shown by the embassy secretaries and personnel toward their chief. They are made of better stuff than that. And as to (3)—It is a serious, baseless and undeserved reflection upon our diplomatic representatives and their uniform esteem and respect for the President and his policies and opinions.

It may be merely incidental, and in the opinions of the wets, unimportant, that Amabssador Dawes considers that the heads of our embassies and legations are members of the official family of the President, and that, as such, they owe to him not only loyalty, but esteem and respect of the highest kind.

Are Soviet Agents in the United States Communists?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I notice the article from The Washington Post printed in the Boston Evening Transcript of Saturday, June 29, with the title of "No Room for Trotzky." Evidently the law as applied to communists is not enforced. May I suggest that you call the attention of the executive branch of our Government to this matter. Since it is natural to assume that every representative of the Soviet government is a communist, representatives of that government should be required to affirm under oath that he (or she) is not a communist.

Great Britain Has Only Two Votes in World Court, But Dominions Might Be Under British Influence.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In your editorial today you speak of the possibility that the recognition of the British Dominions might give Britain seven votes in the world court to America's one. As a matter of fact, Great Britain would absolutely control only two of those votes, her own and that of India. The votes of Canada, Australia, New Zealand, the Irish Free State, and the Union of South Africa would merely be subject to British influence, the strength of which would depend upon the particular issue before the court.

Now, Senator Blease, Show Your Courage.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Please allow me space in your worthy columns to make the following challenge:

I affirm that textile strikers of Loray Mill, Gastonia, N. C., are entitled to a senatorial investigation.

I challenge the Hon. Cole L. Blease to meet me in open debate some time in Rock Hill, S. C.

EVENTS OF INTEREST IN SOCIETY CIRCLES OF CAPITAL

Reminiscences Bring Interest In Washington

Society Turns to Recent Books by Capital Authors.

By JEAN ELIOT.

ALTHOUGH most of the literary laurels which have been plucked in Washington of late are in feminine hands, at the moment there are several distinguished men whose reminiscences are being read with tremendous interest by Washingtonians.

Mr. George T. Marye's "Nearing the End in Imperial Russia" is to be found on the library tables of friends of this former diplomat; and two distinguished army officers, Brig. Gen. James Parker and Brig. Gen. David L. Brainard, have broken into the writing game with stirring volumes, which are in the main autobiographical.

Moreover, the British Ambassador, Sir Esme Howard, has an article in the current Review of Reviews in which he rises to the defense of the much disparaged Victorian era. Sir Esme deplores the connotations of dullness which have arisen around the word "mid-Victorian," declaring that the last 40 years of the reign of Queen Victoria, which chanced to coincide with the first 40 years of his own life, were both a spacious and a happy time. Then, he declares, men still had leisure, they need not be specialists and they could achieve a considerable measure of success in a half dozen lines of activity, sucking honey from them all.

Gen. Brainard's book, "The Outpost of the Lost," is a chapter in the long and stirring record of exploration beyond the Arctic Circle. The author accompanied Maj. Gen. Adolphus Greely on his expedition into the frozen North. Today but two members of the expedition survive, Gen. Greely and Gen. Braid Brainard. The book is penned from notes 40 years old, scrawled on odd bits of paper from day to day, which recorded in vivid fashion the heart-breaking experiences of a little band of polar explorers, faced by starvation and death through many long months, with rescue coming to find but a handful of survivors. The book has a preface by Gen. Greely, with a "warm salutation" to the author—now a resident of Washington.

The introduction to Gen. Parker's volume, "The Old Army—Memories," is by Maj. Gen. Robert Lee Bullard. The famous old cavalryman has written a stirring chapter on the winning of the West—the West of Custer and Buffalo Bill. He tells for the first time in print the true and complete story of Geronimo's capture and later of the pursuit of Aguinaldo in the Philippines, winding up with the epic of America's preparation for the World War and the test of the A. E. F. Leonard Wood, Pershing, Summerall and Roosevelt stalk through the pages, and the tale of the conquest of frontier America is stirringly told by one who took part in it.

The subject matter of Mr. Marye's interesting volume of reminiscences is summed up in its title. It will be remembered that Mr. Marye was United States Ambassador to Russia from 1914 to 1916, so he had a box seat from which to view the pageant of imperial Russia before the curtain was abruptly rung down. It is a record kept from day to day and neither edited nor revised in the light of after events. And the most curious impression from this vivid tale comes from the realization of how utterly the Russians failed to read the handwriting on the wall and of how this blindness was shared by the United States Ambassador.

Mr. Marye was in high favor with the Romanoff government and was decorated by the czar with the rarely conferred Order of St. Alexander Nevsky. The last chapter of his book is prophetically entitled "The Last Audience With the Czar." Mrs. Marye was in Russia with her husband and shared in many of his most interesting experiences.

GREATHOUSE'S BODY STILL IN CREVASSE

Search for Football Coach, Who Lost Life in Mt. Ranier Fall, Proves Futile.

LAWYER'S CORPSE FOUND

Paradise Inn, Rainier National Park, Wash., July 4 (A.P.).—Efforts to recover the body of Forrest Greathouse, Seattle high school football coach, who fell to his death on Mount Rainier Tuesday when he and five other mountain climbers plunged into a crevasse, proved futile today.

The rescue party, led by Charles Brown, veteran mountaineer, returned here late today, and plans were made to continue the search tomorrow. Watchers with a telescope previously reported the rescuers descending the mountain carrying what appeared to be a stretcher. It was surmised Greathouse's body had been found. The burden carried by the men, however, proved to be a dredge which had been left on the mountain earlier in the season.

The party, refreshed by scarcely more than four hours of sleep and loaded with ropes, food, tackle and first-aid kits, departed early today from Camp Muir determined to bring in the body of Greathouse, last of the six trail breakers who fell into the crevasse.

After 24 hours of battling with a raging blizzard the party at midnight last night had carried the body of Edwin A. Wetzel, Milwaukee attorney, into Camp Muir. His body, frozen and mutilated by the jagged ice slides down which he had fallen, was found yesterday in a shallow ice trench.

The two of the original party most seriously injured who are now recovering in a Seattle hospital are E. P. Weatherly, jr., and David Yancey Bradshaw. The other two men are still at Paradise Inn.

Maintenance costs cut 50%

R. L. May, Proprietor A.B.&W. Rapid Transit, Richmond-Washington Motor Coaches, Inc. and Columbia Pike Bus Line. His slogan is "Set Your Watches by our Buses." He uses "Standard" MotorOil in all his motor equipment.

A. B. & W. Rapid Transit makes big savings by using "STANDARD" MOTOR OIL

After using other oils for several years in their 30 large buses and 10 yellow coaches, some time ago the A. B. & W. Rapid Transit changed to "Standard" Motor Oil. R. L. May, President, then asked his shop foreman to keep an accurate check on comparative maintenance and repair costs. The record for the first six months showed a reduction over the previous six months of exactly one-half—a saving of 50 per cent.

This experience of the A. B. & W. Rapid Transit is no mere coincidence. Every gallon of "Standard" Motor Oil is made from crudes with high lubrication value—and then specially processed to give the product a greater degree of oiliness. That is why "Standard" Motor Oil resists friction, clings to metal and stands up under the most terrific punishment. Bus operators who buy lubrication on "cost-per-mile" find they can rely on this oilier oil every time.

Radio Set Put on Train To Amuse

Extensive Use of Receivers Is Predicted; Audiences Permitted in Studio Sessions in Australia for Mass Action.

In their effort to compete with various other forms of transportation, such as buses, airplanes, and automobiles, the railways are offering every inducement of luxurious travel, especially on longer routes. Now comes the announcement that the Great Northern Railway's de luxe train, the Empire Builder, has been equipped with a Victor radio receiving set for the enjoyment of its passengers.

On its initial test out of Chicago recently listeners reported that the reception was remarkably clear despite the roar of the speeding train. So successful was the experiment that the railway officials immediately ordered nine additional receiving sets for other trains on the line. They will be installed at once.

Officials of the railway predict that within another year every train that covers any considerable distance will have radio receiving sets as standard forms of entertainment.

One hundred and twenty-four stations broadcasted the second law appreciation appeal last night at 8 o'clock. The address that was carried over these stations called upon the radio audience to organize itself politically and to make use of the franchise to the utmost. This is but an example of the growing influence of the broadcasters. What power they will wield in the next political campaign!

Although there is great difference of opinion as to its advisability in the United States, 3LO, Melbourne, is the only broadcasting station in Australia, and one of the very few in the world, to admit an audience to its studio sessions. It does this deliberately, because after considering the matter exhaustively from every possible aspect, it is convinced that the resonant effect of a reasonably large audience is far superior to any other acoustic contrivance. The "mass action" of so many persons is conductive to better broadcasting, it is argued.

"This has been proved both by tests in the studio itself," 3LO reports, "and by long and varied experience in transmission from concert halls elsewhere. In fact, any listener who is used to the matter can tell very closely whether the adience is more or less large.

"There is, however, another aspect, namely, the value of an audience in relation to performers. Here we get on much more debatable and erratic grounds. Performers used to small audiences, drawing room artists, non-professional bodies such as church and other choirs usually appreciate the proximity of a studio audience, whereas artists whose venue is the concert platform or stage in large halls and theaters, vary greatly in their views on this matter."

A Paris Travel Costume

© VOGUE

WITH the enviable French trait of making a utilitarian costume look as charming as it is useful Champcommunal has designed an ensemble for traveling that might inspire one to seek the four corners of the globe. The top coat of heavy beige tweed is cut simply but subtly on loose lines. Its raglan sleeves and front panels which form pockets are notes of comfort as well as chic. An ingenious idea is that of a separate lining of "old red" wool crepe, which proves to be an excellent wrap for warmer days.

The dress is of wool crepe in a slightly lighter tone than the topcoat. Its interest lies in the self-incrustation of the fabric, the circular cut to the skirt and the softly cascading jabot. A belt of the "old red" wool crepe makes a chic accent.

Melody by Dawes Over Air Tonight

Sascha Fidelman Will Play Composition on Violin; Hawaiian Shadows Over WMAL Will Feature Yodel Duet.

By all rules static should be about at its worst from the Fourth of July, but it was far from that last night. The air was quiet as a mill pond. There was, however, a noticeable weakness in volume in stations received.

A composition by Gen. Charles G. Dawes, Ambassador to the Court of St. James, will be the feature of the Cities Service Hour over WRC at 7 o'clock tonight. The number, "Melody in A," will be played on the violin by Sascha Fidelman. The program will also include Gounod's "Bacchanale," from "Philemen et Baucis;" the "Tender Question," by Felix; selections from the "Show Boat;" "Somewhere a Voice Is Calling," and "The Music Box," by Friml.

At the same hour "Lili-u-e," a melody native of the South Sea Islands, will be heard as a yodel duet for the feature number of "Hawaiian Shadows" over WMAL and the Columbia chain.

A program consisting mainly of popular fox trots and ballads will be presented by the Hawaiians. Among the selections will be "I've Got a Feeling I'm Falling," "The Pagan Love Song" from Ramon Novarro's latest picture, Arnold Johnson's "Tear Drops," and in a lighter vein, the comedy song "Outside."

Norman Brokenshire will be master of ceremonies.

The National Broadcasting Co. will carry over the WJZ network the Pacific Little Symphony's program from San Francisco at 3 o'clock this afternoon. The scherzo movement from Dvorak's symphony, "From the New World," will be highlight of the classical program.

Entertainers from "Evening Stars" will perform in the daytime this morning at 10:30 o'clock over WRC when the "Slumber Hour Musicians," with Jessica Dragonette, Colin O'More and Ludwig Laurier will make their daylight debut.

A parade of the "Whoopee Hat Brigade" will be celebrated in song by the Raybestos Twins, Al Bernard and Billy Beard, during their broadcast over WRC at 5:30 o'clock. The program opens with the orchestra playing "Breakaway," and goes into "Weary River," Billy Beard singing "There Ain't No Land Like Dixieland to Me," and a tenor solo by Lannie Ross, "Heart of Mine."

The second of the series of the comedy travelogue series known as "The Family Goes Abroad," will be available over the same station at 9:30 o'clock. The Jones' have dinner with the captain tonight and encounter new surprises.

Novel orchestrations of contemporary popular songs, vocal numbers by a male quartet, and a weekly sports review by Graham McNamee will distinguish a new weekly radio feature, the Gillette program, which goes on the air tonight over the N. B. C. system at 7:30 o'clock. The broadcast can be heard over WJZ.

TODAY'S WOMEN

By EARL MINDERMAN

JULY 5.

SARAH KEMBLE SIDDONS, the greatest tragic actress of her time, was born this day, 1755. After she had established a reputation in the English provinces, Garrick engaged her for the Drury Lane Theater in London, where her first appearance was a distinct failure. After further experience in the provinces, she again was engaged for the famous London theater and made a spectacular success. The public was astonished by her powers and she was universally recognized as the foremost tragedienne of the English stage.

In the role of Lady Macbeth she was declared to be perfect.

For 30 years she continued to astonish and enchant lovers of the drama, and when she took leave of the stage in 1812 her last audience melted into tears.

The great actress had a tall, striking figure, brilliant beauty and powerfully expressive eyes. Joshua Reynolds painted her as "The Tragic Muse." Dr. Samuel Johnson wrote his name on the hem of her garment in this picture "that it might go down to posterity." There are two statues of her.

Dare Interprets the Mode

Printed satin, with pink, gray and blue roses on a black background, is combined with plain black in this stunning deshabille. (Courtesy of Drecoll-Beer, Paris.)

ONE of the newest Parisian theatrical successes, "Circe," has attracted particular attention because of the elegance of the toilettes worn by the feminine players, created in each case by Marthe Regnier, who is both couturiere and a famous Parisian actress herself, though she does not appear in this piece.

One outfit worn by Vera Korene, the enchantress in question, includes an afternoon gown of crepe satin, printed in one of the charming Foujita designs of which we have told you, beaded and embroidered in rose and blue. This is worn with a stunning afternoon coat of gray moire and a gray fox fur of a darker tone. The bodice of the dress is simple, with a tiny collar, and the skirt is extremely full, longer in the back than the front.

Another afternoon coat worn by Mlle. Korene is of bright blue-gray, with collar and very wide sleeves of gray caracul.

An evening gown she wears in another act is of white crepe satin, the bodice being elaborately embroidered with long, tubular beads.

Mme. Barbier Krauss wears an attractive afternoon dress of black crepe satin, cleverly trimmed with facings of printed chiffon, which shows on the loose cuffs and skirt panel.

The Lovely-Lady-dress! It has a very tricky bodice and intricate skirt drape which, once you learn how to make from the illustrated leaflet for which you may send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post, will always be at your disposal. And, ah-ah-ah, 'tis a silhouette that will not go out of style for years and years!

Upon this silhouette one builds a smart street dress, or a truly stunning dinner dress, or a lovely afternoon gown. We tell you how to make all three, so you had better hurry with that envelope!

Printed satin can certainly combine very successfully with a matching plain material, and have the results spell loveliness! In the deshabille I illustrated today, black satin printed with pink, gray and blue roses is combined with plain black satin—and the results we will leave you to judge for yourself.

Birthstones? Yes, and now it is a whim for l'elegante to consider the flower that represents her birth month in the light of a good-luck symbol—and, for this season at least, to introduce it in various little ways into her wardrobe—as boutonnieres, or affected in prints, or even on her stationery and boudoir decorations.

The weekly Dare fashion letter in the Sunday Post is well worth looking for.

in Green Panne Velvet

The glinting green of rhythmic waves is caught in shining panne velvet . . . and it reiterates exactly Lelong's frock for starry nights! Diagonally the flounces catch the new spirit in fashion, lengthening the skirt at the sides! Shirrings, too, suggest subtly the princess line! Sublimely lovely for some smart young thing . . . and but

What Today Means to You

JULY 5
By MARY BLAKE.

"CANCER."

IF July 5 is your birthday the best hours for you on this day are from 10 a. m. to 11 a. m., from 4 p. m. to 5 p. m., and from 8 p. m. to 10 p. m. The danger periods are from 4:30 a. m. to 7:30 a. m., and from 2 p. m. to 3 p. m.

A personal loss may be anticipated on this date. An opportunity to travel, of an extended character, will present itself. There will be many violent changes in your plans and surroundings, and the signs indicate that you will again be brought into contact with old associations and former friends.

The child born July 5 will not be precocious or spectacular. It will be a plodder, with a degree of stick-at-iveness that will eventually lead to success. It will be faithful and sincere. It will be acquisitive of information, and will learn and profit more by experience than by study. Its affections will not vary nor change.

Although you occasionally fly into violent, but brief, spasms of anger, you, on the whole, possess great self-control. Trifles—as insignificant as they are annoying—upset your equilibrium. In times of real trouble you display poise and domination. Your temperament is a very optimistic one, and this sometimes leads you into backing a proposition, even when to the outsider it is past salvation. You always, in private life as well as business, discount your problems, and put unearned premium on your successes. You are too downright and take a middle course.

Your nature is sociable, and you are never really happy unless surrounded by friends. Solitude makes no appeal to you. When alone you are restless and miserable; when in congenial company, you are at your best. Residence in the hustle and bustle of a city will stimulate you, and bring out your good points. Life in the country will develop inertia and moodiness.

Your intelligence is of a very high order, and if it were allied to a judicial sense, it would be difficult for you to fail in any undertakings that you might essay. Your disposition is very affectionate, and the signs denote that you will, in marriage, find your wholesouled love fully reciprocated.

Successful people born July 5:

Phineas T. Barnum—Showman.
Henry C. Murphy—Lawyer.
Horatio Southgate—P. E. clergyman.
William C. Whitney—Lawyer.
Joseph B. Foraker—Soldier and senator.

It's Easier to Marry the Boss' Daughter If You Dress Well

If you must be a snob we strongly advise that you go about it in the right manner. You can't be high-hat if you wear a low-down hat. You can't be a bank president and look like the janitor. Dress well, young man, dress well. And while on the subject of well dress, we know of many successful young men around town who wouldn't wear anything else but . . .

—a Society Brand Suit
—a Dobbs Hat
—Hanan Shoes
—Interwoven Socks
—a Manhattan Shirt
—a Trojan Tie
—a Hickok Belt
—Mansco Underwear

And how do we know all this? Why, these young men have formed the habit, long ago, of buying their clothing and personal furnishings at this store . . . where nationally famous merchandise of good taste is featured.

YANKEES TAKE TWIN BILL FROM NATS, 8-4, 14-4; TOLAN WINS NATIONAL 100 AND 200 YARD TITLES

NEGRO STAR DEFEATS DASH ACES IN A. A. U. MEET, BUCKING WIND

Bracey Runs Second in Century Despite Time of 10 Secs.

Marks Fall in Discus, Javelin, Vault and 440 Sprint.

By FRANK H. FRAWLEY
(Associated Press Sports Writer).

DENVER UNIVERSITY STADIUM, July 4 (A.P.).—Under the relentless charge of a host of the Nation's finest athletes, four new National Athletic Union records were created today in the senior track and field championships. Sixteen new title holders were crowned, while only Herman Brix, in the shot put; Harry Hinkle, in the 3-mile walk; Steve Anderson, in the 120-yard high hurdles, and Pat McDonald, in the 56-pound weight, were able to retain their honors.

The 100-yard dash, heralded as the "century of the century," because of the class of the field, saw Eddie Tolan, the "Midnight Express" of the University of Michigan, crowned as the season's champion. A southwest gale was blowing against the sprinters as they went to their marks, and anything like record time was out of the question.

Wykoff, Off Badly, Fourth; Bracey Finishes Second.

Frank Wykoff, of the Los Angeles A. C., the defending champion, never was in the race. He got off to a poor start and had to be content with fourth place; Claude Bracey, of Rice Institute, crowding Tolan for second place, and Russell Sweet, of the Olympic A. C., taking third.

Tolan made it a double triumph when he came back to win the final in the 220-yard dash, also run against a stiff wind.

All the more remarkable were Tolan's performances because he entered the races with a toe injury that was plainly evident when he walked away from the finish line. Physicians said that the nail of the big toe on the right foot was torn off completely. The injury was caused by a fall while doing gymnasium practice.

Javeline Record of Hines Beaten by Coast Man.

Jess Mortenson of the Los Angeles A. C., beat the former A. A. U. record in the javelin, 202 feet 1¾ inches, with a throw of 204 feet 9.75 inches. The former mark was made by Creth B. Hines, of Georgetown University, last year.

Eric Krenz, of the Olympic A. C., San Francisco, threw the discus 157 feet 2 inches. The old record was held by Bud Houser, of the Los Angeles A. C., at 153 feet 6¼ inches.

The time for the 440-yard run was lowered by 1-5 of a second by R. F. Bowen, of the Pittsburgh A. C., who was clocked at 48 2-5 seconds.

A new meet record for the pole vault was hung up by Fred Sturdy, of Yale, representing the Los Angeles A. C., who went over at 13 feet 9¼ inches, ¼-inch better than the mark made last year by Lee Barnes, of the University of Southern California, and Sabin Carr, of Yale. Carr, who holds the world's record at 14 feet, did not compete today.

The Olympic Club captured the team championship with 44 points, displacing the Los Angeles Club, which piled up a total of 39.

Allot Beats Defending Champion In 440 Low Hurdles.

To Gordon Allot, University of Colorado boy enrolled under the Denver Athletic Club's banner, went the honor of dethroning F. Morgan Taylor as champion in the 440-yard low hurdles. Allot ran a beautiful race despite the wind to finish in 54 3-10 seconds. Taylor was yards behind.

Anderson, Washington University's great athlete, was the only one that to win first place in two events. He won the heat and later the final of the 120-yard high hurdles in 14 9-10 seconds—mighty good time, weather conditions considered, and only a half second slower than the world's record. He won the 220-yard low hurdles in 24 1-10 seconds, nosing out Frank Cuhel, of the University of Iowa, the decision being announced after a protest had been lodged.

Seeded Stars Win in D. C. Tennis

Charest, Mangin Gain 3d Round; Van Vliet Easy Winner.

Kurland, Baltimore's Champion, Defeats Col. Johnson.

ALL seeded players and the majority of the favorites survived the first day's play of the singles in the District men's tennis championships yesterday on the Edgemoor Club courts. The largest and most representative field in the history of the event reported, but the tournament committee was equal to its task and conducted the proceedings with clock-like precision, some of the competition advancing to the third round as a result.

Maj. Robert C. Van Vliet, defending singles champion and winner of the recent Army tournament, easily came through the first round by defeating Leroy Thurtell, former Central High School and University of Virginia player, 6—0, 6—1. Van Vliet will play his second round match today, meeting Frank Taylor at 2 o'clock.

Tom Mangan, seeded No. 2, and Clarence Charest, No. 4, both former District titleholders, advanced to the third round. The former, whom several of the experts are picking to lift the crown from Van Vliet's head, played only one match, having drawn a first round bye. He defeated Kip Callan, Georgetown University regular, 6—1, 6—3. Charest won two matches, beating F. M. Silva in the first round, 6—2, 6—1, and disposing of P. Edgar in the second, 6—0, 7—5.

O'Neil-Fowler Advance to Fourth Doubles Round.

Maurice O'Neil, seeded No. 7, partner with Hal Fowler in the 1928 doubles championship, advanced to the fourth round. Adding to a first round bye, he defeated Ensign C. D. Griffin, of the Navy Leech Cup squad, in the second round, 6—0, 6—3, and took the scalp of Hugh C. Trigg in a hard battle in the third round, 7—5, 6—2, 6—3.

The other seeded players who survived were Bob Considine, municipal champion, No. 3; Dooley Mitchell, No. 5; Ensign William Howard, Navy Leech Cup Squad, No. 6, and Louis Kurland, Baltimore champion, No. 8. The last mentioned departed immediately after his first round match for Baltimore, where he was scheduled to compete in the finals of the public parks tournament there. His first round victim was Col. Walt C. Johnson, high ranking Army player.

Kurland's fellow townsman, Billy Jacobs, former national boy's champion, also went into the second round by trouncing Ben Dewller, 6—0, 6—2.

Gwynn King, strong public parks player who has been suffering a shoulder injury for the past year, returned to action and won his first match, defeating Maurice Goubeau, Western High captain, 6—1, 6—3.

The other half of the Western High entry, "Barney" Welsh, came through with flying colors in the first round, however. He eliminated Maj. Georges Thenault, military attache of the French Embassy, one of the best racqueteers in the city, by 6—3, 8—6.

Army and Navy Stars Fare Poorly.

It was not a very good day for the big Army and Navy contingent entered. The luck of the draw brought Army players together in two matches, while Cleveland, Ohio, July 4 (A.P.).—The Indians and the White Sox divided a double-header today, the Sox taking the first, 9 to 2, behind the fine pitching of Urban Faber, while the Indians battered three pitchers, while Miljus held the visitors safe to cop the night-cap, 12-5.

Macks Twice Defeat Red Sox, 3-1 and 8-1

Philadelphia, Pa., July 4 (A.P.).—The Philadelphia Athletics celebrated Independence Day by defeating the Boston Red Sox in the morning and afternoon tussiesnly scores of 3-1 and 8-1.

Grove fanned eleven in the morning contest, running his total strikeouts for the season to 101. The victory was Grove's thirteenth of the season against two defeats.

Cochrane, Grove's battery mate, costarred with the pitcher in the morning by figuring in the scoring of all the runs. He hit three doubles and wound up his labors with a home run.

In the afternoon game Quinn was given brilliant support by Cronin, rookie shortstop from Portland.

Dykes handled thirteen chances in the field without a miscue.

Screen to Curb Homers In St. Louis Stadium

St. Louis, July 4 (A. P.).—Fewer home runs for Sportsmans Park is the latest wrinkle the Cardinals and Browns must overcome, as well as their opponents. A wire screen, high enough to stop all balls which would not clear the right field pavilion, is to be built. The centerfield bleachers will remain unprotected by the netting.

Cubs and Reds Divide; Wilson Attacks Kolp

Chicago, July 4 (A.P.).—The Cubs broke even with the Cincinnati Reds in today's holiday bill, but dropped out of first place, two points behind Pittsburgh, which took a pair from the Cardinals.

The Reds took the morning game, an eight-inning affair, 9 to 8, but the Cubs came back in the afternoon and batted out a 10-to-5 decision. Chicago outhit the Reds, 15 to 14 in the morning, but a final inning rally fell shy.

Hack Wilson, Cub center fielder started a small riot in the second game when he left first base, ran to the Red bench and struck Pitcher Ray Kolp several times. He had singled and while on first heard remarks from the Cincinnati bench which angered him. He believed Kolp responsible. Both players were sent from the field.

Athletics Pass July 4 With Big Lead

Getty Expects Macks to Clinch Flag Early in September.

Present Advantage of 9½ Games Is Considered Safe.

By FRANK GETTY,
(United Press Sports Editor.)

NEW YORK, July 4 (U.P.).—Old Mr. McGillicuddy's diligent young men are in the spot customarily occupied by pennant winners on Independence Day.

That is to say, they are approximately ten games out in front of the pack and are going like a string of firecrackers.

The Fourth of July is an appropriate day on which to look upon the field and make your world series reservations for next October.

One end of the 1929 series will be played in Philadelphia, with the Athletics (not the Phillies) participating. They are not going to overtake Connie Mack's ball club this season, you may lay to that—and even lay odds.

While the Mackmen didn't gain on the field today, owing to the insistence of the New York Yankees and the St. Louis Browns upon winning a game themselves, now and then, the league leaders did pick up the useful ends of a double-header, meaning both.

Lefty Grove and John Picus Quinn turned in two neatly pitched games to lengthen what looks like another winning streak for the future pennant winners.

Good Pitching Must Stay With Macks.

Good pitching like today's, even if it crops up only occasionally, is the thing the A's are going to need for the rest of the season. They have proved already that they can bludgeon their way through about three games a week, but they've simply got to have a little steady flinging on the other days.

The New York Yankees, representing the real threat to the fond hopes of old Mr. McGillicuddy, are bound to get better pitching from now on. It couldn't be much worse, broadly speaking. Waite Hoyt has kept the club in the pennant race and he will be good right through the season unless he meets with an accident. The other pitchers on Miller Huggins' staff show signs of getting tougher between now and the end of September.

If old Mr. McGillicuddy is to achieve his ambition and wave his score-card signals from the players' bench during the next world series, he needs good pitching. There is no reason to suppose he won't get it, and if he does, the Mackmen are likely to bat their way right over the top of the American League long before the curtain comes down.

Race Likely to Be Over Early in September.

"Athletics Clinch Pennant" may be a prominent headline about the middle of September if things work out favorable for Connie Mack. Certainly a lead of nine and one-half games, their mathematical advantage at the moment, is a comfortable, if not a safe one.

It is well for every one interested to remember that the New York Yankees, while they still were just about the best ball club of modern times, blew a thirteen-game lead not more than a year ago, and had to work like blazes through the heat of the September stretch to get enough of it back to qualify for the world series.

YESTERDAY'S RES

DOWAGIAC BEATS MISSTEP IN ARLINGTON FEATURE

Wild Rose Ace Sets Track Record

Clyde Van Dusen Is Winner at Mile in New Time.

Osmand Beats Petee Wrack in Feature at Aqueduct.

ARLINGTON PARK RACE TRACK, Ill., July 4 (A.P.).—Two new track records were established here this afternoon, the first when H. P. Gardner's Clyde Van Dusen stepped the mile (inner course) in 1:38 2-5 to win the Old Glory purse, and the second when the Wild Rose Farm's 4-year-old Dowagiac negotiated the mile and an eighth in 1:50 3-5 to win the Stars and Stripes Handicap, the feature event of the card. In this latter event Misstep, from the Le Mar Stock Farm, was second; Sun Beau, from W. S. Kilmer's Stable, was third and Canaan, coupled in the betting with Misstep, was fourth. Thirteen horses faced the barrier.

Dowagiac, under a good ride by Jockey A. Pascuma, was rated along in closest contention until reaching the stretch, where he passed the weakening Misstep to win by two lengths. Misstep was sent into the lead right at the start and showed high speed to the last furlong, where his heavy impost told and he weakened slightly, but lasted to take second money by a length and a half.

Sun Beau Could Not Catch the Leaders.

Sun Beau, away well, was reserved off the early pace to the half-mile pole, then moved up, but could not catch the leaders and finished third by two lengths. Canaan, away slowly, was sent forward and raced in sixth position to the 6-furlong pole, where young E. Pool shook him up, and he finished in the small end of the purse by four lengths.

The race had a net value to the winner of $15,550, and Dowagiac rewarded his backers at $23.34 for a $2 ticket.

The largest attendance in many years gathered to witness the sport offered by an excellent program. The weather was clear and the track fast.

Osmand, Favorite, Wins Carter Handicap.

Aqueduct Race Track, N. Y., July 4 (A.P.).—Over a fast track, J. E. Widener's Osmand, favorite in the betting, won the Carter Handicap, the feature of the closing day's program here today. Osmand carried 132 pounds and had to stand a long drive to beat Petee Wrack a head, with Distraction third. The race was worth $8,900 to the winner and the 1 furlongs were run in 1:26 3-5. Byrd cut out the early pace, with Osmand about third. In the stretch Osmand took the lead and stood a long drive gamely to win by a nose.

Broadside Scores in Latonia Feature.

Latonia Race Track, July 4 (A.P.).—L. B. Combs' Broadside, the 5-year-old son of Man o' War-Blue Grass, under clever handling by Jockey D. Connelly, won the nineteenth running of the Independence Handicap, the feature of a good card here today. The race was run over the mile and three-sixteenths distance and resulted in one of the closest contests seen in many years. It had a net value to the winner of $10,525. Royal Julian, from the W. H. Whitehouse Stable, was second; Rhinock, from the Park View Stable, was third, and Martinique, from D. E. Stewart's string, was fourth. Eight horses started.

Broadside, away well after delaying the start, moved up steadily on reaching the half-mile ground and continuing determinedly began drawing clear in the final sixteenth to win by a length in a hard drive.

KEEN COMPETITION IN HOLIDAY GOLF EVENTS HERE

Wells Victor In Argyle Tourney

Bannockburn Event to Durant; Tie at Columbia.

Neuman Takes Marc Goldnamer Cup at Town-Country.

By HENRY LITCHFIELD WEST.

WITH ideal weather conditions, all of the local golf courses were crowded yesterday with competitors in the various events scheduled on all the programs. Before noon more than 200 players had started from the first tee of the Columbia Country Club, and all of the links had more than their usual quota. On the ten golf clubs of the District attractive programs had been arranged, and the competition was unusually keen.

At the Argyle Club there was a flag tournament, which was won by Ralph Wells, who holed out on the nineteenth hole, with Sidney Sherwood second, who finished on the eighteenth green, and Frank M. Shortall third, whose final stroke was 240 yards down the eighteenth fairway. Other near winners were W. J. Brown and H. A. Sweinhaut.

The Bannockburn tombstone tournament was won by E. D. Durant, whose final stroke landed his ball in the eighteenth cup. T. B. Kavanaugh was second and Miles Taylor was third. The women's tombstone tournament was won by Mrs. Middleton Beaman, with Miss I. M. Harvey in second place. Leo F. Pass, with a tee shot of 275 yards, won the driving contest, Dr. T. J. W. Brown being second, with 250 yards. Mrs. Middleton Beaman won the women's driving contest with a tee shot of 190 yards. Middleton Beaman won the obstacle putting contest, securing a par 3 by chipping the ball into the cup through a barrel from a distance of 20 yards, with the second prize won by Dr. D. L. Hazard.

Result of Beaver Dam Tourney Not Announced.

At Beaver Dam, the principal competition was for the President's cup, eighteen holes, medal play, handicap allowance, but owning to the fact that up to a late hour last night the members had not turned in their scores, the result was not announced. The mens' approaching contest was won by M. F. McCarthy with W. N. Runswick second, while in the mens' putting contest Jesse F. Baggett was the winner, with M. F. McCarthy second. In the women's events Miss Elva Lohr won the driving contest with a distance of 137 yards, with Mrs. Carl Mitchell second, 126 yards. Mrs. Mitchell also won the women's approaching contest, while in the putting contest Mrs. T. M. Beavers was winner and Mrs. A. L. Hildreth was runner-up.

At the Chevy Chase club, in match play against par, the winner was Maj. O. S. Albright, who with a gross score of 88 notwithstanding a 10 on the eighth hole, was 2 up on par, with a handicap of 18. G. Brown Miller, with a gross score of 75 and a handicap of 7, was all even, and L. B. Platt, with a handicap of 12, was 1 down.

Fairmont Adds Talent For 2d League Series

Special to The Washington Post.

Fairmont, W. Va., July 4.—Fairmont, preparing for a big showing in the second half of the Middle Atlantic season, will have a number of new faces in its line-up. "Cowboy" Comstock, star outfielder, who formerly played with Charleroi, in the Middle Atlantic, and Akron, in the Central League, is a late addition. F. Cosares, Cuban outfielder from Tampa, Fla., is also a new face in the line-up.

The third new addition is Joe Wahl, southpaw first sacker, who started the season with Fairmont, but was released a few weeks ago, when Manager Phillips shifted Art Mueller to first base. Wahl at that time belonged to Jersey City. This time he comes to Fairmont as a free agent. Wha's inability to hit brought about his release from the local club, although he played snappy ball in the field. He showed promise of developing into a hitter.

Cumberland "Caseys" Blank Centerville, 3-0

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., July 4.—After having sustained four consecutive defeats by the margin of one run, Johnny Long's Knights of Columbus Team pulled the unexpected when it turned back the heretofore undefated Centerville club in a Cumberland City League contest at Community Baseball Park by the score of 3 to 0.

George Stegmaier's pitching and the timely hitting of Cletus "Vic" May aided in giving the Caseys a victory. He left the Pennsylvanians down with four scattered hits and fanned eight batsmen. Stegmaier halted the six-game winning streak of the league leaders "Vic" May put the game on ice in the fifth frame when he smashed a two-bagger which sent two runs over the plate.

Phils and Robins Split Holiday Double-Header

Brooklyn, July 4 (A. P.).—The Phillies and the Robins divided their holiday double-header today, the Quakers smashing out a 14 to 12 victory against seven Brooklyn pitchers in the opening game, only to bow before Johnny Morrison's curve ball, 5 to 3, in the finale. It was Morrison's sixth straight victory. He has not been charged with a defeat since his return to the majors from Kansas City.

The first game was a hectic struggle although the Phillies were always ahead. Klein led a 22-hit batting attack with five clean hits and a base on balls in six trips to the plate. Frederick, Rhiel and Bancroft hit home runs for the losers.

Boston, July 4 (A.P.).—The Braves and Giants divided a double-header here today. The Braves won the first 4 to 3 when Spohrer's single in the ninth sent in the tying and winning runs. In the second game the Giants batted Cunningham and Jones to an 8 to 0 defeat behind Benton's six-hit pitching.

Melvin Ott got his twenty-fourth home run of the season in the second game during his only official time at pat. He walked the other four times.

Lermond Romps to Victory In Mile in 4:24.6.

Leo Lermond, of the Boston A. A., beat out a classy field in the 1-mile run in 4 minutes 24.6 seconds. Although run in comparatively poor time, this race was one of the most exciting of the day. The lead alternated often as Lermond never cared to increase his speed as he rounded the turn into the stretch against the wind. His finish was too strong for Rufus Kiser, of the University of Washington, who was a close second. The surprise of this race was Harold Manning, Wichita, Kans., university youngster, who beat out the defending champion, Ray Conger, of the Illinois A. C.

The championship games will come to a close tomorrow with the decathlon and the relays.

singles and Meusel, Robertson and Gehrig doubles—all hard-hit smashes. Brown disappeared with the double by Gehrig, who was the ninth to face him, and Ruth, up for the second time in the inning, was retired by Burke, another southpaw, on a grounder to second.

Burke held the fort successfully until the seventh, when Lazzeri singled and Meusel showed that he has come out of his batting slump with a double off the boards in right that put Lazzeri on third, and the two runs came in on an out by Bengough and an error by Cronin.

Ad Liska, the submariner, was sent to the firing line in the eighth of the second game and took a thorough pasting. Nine Yankees went to bat and they made four long hits for six runs, inasmuch as Liska sent two runs home with wild pitches.

TAKOMA PARK HOLDS PATRIOTIC PAGEANT

Civic Associations of District and Maryland Unite in Celebration.

ARMY BAND IS FEATURE

Takoma Park celebrated the Fourth of July with exercises which started in the morning with a parade and culminated in a brilliant display of fireworks in the evening. The celebration was held under the auspices of the civic and business organizations of the town, which spreads part way into the District from Maryland. Civic organizations of both Maryland and the District took part.

The parade was led by the United States Army Band, obtained through the offices of Representative Frederick N. Zihlman. The band was followed by contingents of veterans of the wars of the United States and their auxiliaries and a patriotic pageant.

The parade was followed by patriotic exercises held on the Takoma Trinity Episcopal Church grounds, Piney Branch road and Dahlia street. Representative Richard Yates, of Illinois, former governor of that State, was the principal speaker. The meeting was called to order by Herbert Walton Rutledge, general chairman, who introduced Ira G. Hersey, the chairman. The invocation was pronounced by the Rev. R. Paul Schearrer, pastor of the Takoma Park Presbyterian Church, and the benediction was offered by the Rev. J. Manly Cobb, rector of Trinity Episcopal Church. The Army Band played patriotic airs in the interims.

The pageant, which was the major feature of the parade, was symbolic of America as the melting pot for the world and depicted the assimilation of foreigners. It was written and directed by C. Leonard Boyer.

Those who participated in the pageant are, Mrs. W. C. McGathen, George W. Graves, Mrs. W. H. Walker, J. T. Becker, Mrs. E. J. McGeogh, F. R. Leaman, Mrs. R. E. Gaithersburg and Washington Grove Company Wins in Hydrant Hook-Up Test.

WOMAN TEAMS COMPETE

A hydrant hook-up contest among seven Montgomery County Volunteer Fire Departments and two woman's teams was the principal feature of the Fourth of July celebration at Kensington yesterday under the auspices of the Kensington Volunteer Fire Department.

The contest was preceded by a parade from Connecticut avenue to the fair grounds, led by a troop of Boy Scouts and the Kensington Band. The fire apparatus from various towns represented in the hook-up contest followed. A garland of red, white and blue streamers was carried by the Kensington company.

Arriving at the carnival grounds, the firemen drew lots for places in the contest. Rockville Department was the first to try its luck.

The contest was won by the Gaithersburg-Washington Grove Volunteer Department, with a time of 21 seconds. Chevy Chase was second with 22 2-5 seconds and Kensington was third with 23 2-5 seconds. Other entrants finished as follows: Bethesda, 27 2-5 seconds; Rockville, 27 3-5 seconds; Silver Spring, 38 seconds; Sandy Spring, 50 seconds.

The woman's contest was won by the Kensington Team with a time of 15 1-5 seconds, using a single hose. Rockville women required 16 seconds.

Silver cups were presented to the winning men's and women's teams.

Sergt. A. J. Bargagni, of the Washington Fire Department, was the judge, and Lieut. T. Mayhew, of the Washington Rescue Squad No. 1, and Matthew Trimble, of Kensington, were timekeepers. Sergt. Bargagni presented the cups.

In the course of the contest a number of the spectators were soaked with water from the hose when firemen, in their eagerness to win, failed to note the way the nozzles were pointing. An automobile from Florida, in which there were several women, was well drenched.

ROAD OPENING MARKS PETERSBURG FOURTH

10-Mile Race Is Feature of Holiday Celebration; Prizes Given.

TWO BALL GAMES PLAYED

Special to The Washington Post.

Petersburg, Va., July 4.—The Fourth of July marked the opening for traffic throughout its entire length of the Petersburg and Hopewell highway. The road has been opened for the past several weeks with the exception of a stretch of 1½ miles from Camp Lee to Rosewood Church which was completed late yesterday. Work on the highway was begun about eighteen months ago, and little time has been lost in completing it. The highway is now one of the best in the State.

Perhaps the most interesting event of today's celebration was the marathon race between Petersburg and Hopewell, a distance of 10 miles, staged by 25 runners from Hopewell, Petersburg, Richmond, Clifton Forge and other sections of the State. The race, which was sponsored by Pete Nelson, sports promoter of Hopewell, and indorsed by the Retail Merchants Association and the Chamber of Commerce of Hopewell, started this afternoon in front of the Y. M. C. A. Building in Petersburg and ended at Tubize Athletic Field in Hopewell. The race was won by Clyde Newton, of Hopewell, who covered the distance in an hour and seven minutes. By winning the race Newton is to receive two silver loving cups and a watch. The second best runner was Forest Tawney, of the Hopewell Tubize Athletic Club, who won a solid gold medal. The other successful runners received silver and gold medals.

The race was followed by a double-header baseball game played on Tubize Athletic Field between a team from Fort Monroe and a team of Hopewell.

The prizes won in the marathon race were presented tonight by Mayor Lane Elder of Hopewell, and there was an address by Hopewell's city manager, Roy Braden. In addition to the prizes presented to the successful winners in the race, a silver loving cup was given to each of the two trainers, Ninno and Sadler, in appreciation of their services in training athletes for Hopewell.

CHURCH BOARD GIVES SUPPORT TO CANNON

Charges Attacks on Bishop Are Instigated by Foes of Prohibition.

STOCK TRADING DEFENDED

Lake Junaluska, N. C., July 4 (A.P.). The board of temperance and social service of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, in annual session here, adopted a resolution today expressing its "confidence in the leadership" of Bishop James Cannon, jr., of Richmond, Va., its president. The action was taken, the resolution said, in view of "recent attacks on Bishop Cannon instigated by enemies of prohibition."

Before adopting the resolution the board considered numerous documents and written statements presented by Bishop Cannon and relating to his alleged dealings in stocks.

The board declared it was convinced "the attacks on Bishop Cannon, in which the entire wet press is engaged with evident unanimity, have been instigated by enemies of prohibition with the sole purpose of discrediting a great and influential leader of the prohibition forces of the Nation."

The resolution added that "We hereby declare our confidence in the leadership of Bishop Cannon and urge him to continue his unrivaled work for the maintenance, enforcement and extension of the wise and beneficent policy of prohibition and for the accomplishment of the other objects of our board, and in all such efforts we pledge him not only our confidence, gratitude and affection, but our continued support."

$1,000,000 FACTORY SITE DEEDS SIGNED

Work on Fredericksburg Plant for Chemical Manufacture to Start at Once.

SEE OPERATION BY JAN. 1

Special to The Washington Post.

Fredericksburg, Va., July 4.—With the signing of deeds yesterday for the transfer of the manufacturing site here on which the Sylvania Industrial Corporation, a $3,500,000 New York concern, is to erect a $1,000,000 plant, actual construction work is to begin at once. The Richmond, Fredericksburg & Potomac Railroad is to start work immediately on a spur track from its main line to the tract, where the new plant will be located and contract for construction of the plant is to be let as soon as the architect's plans have been completed.

The property purchased consists of 115 acres bought from W. S. Embrey and about 35 acres bought from S. L. Shannon, all located within 1 mile of the city limits on the Tidewater trail and bordering the Rappahannock River. Officials of the company have stated that manufacturing operations would begin by January 1 with an initial pay roll of 250 persons, of whom 180 will be men and the remainder women. Later, the workers will number 500, it is said.

The nature of the product to be manufactrued has not been divulged, secrecy being advisable because of trade reasons, but it was stated that the plant would make a chemical specialty.

Dr. R. W. Wallach, of New York, is president of the Sylvania Industrial Corporation, and Dr. Frank H. Reichel is general manager. Dr. Reichel, who will be in active charge of the plant, has already obtained quarters here and will move his family to Fredericksburg on his return from a business trip to Europe.

The Sylvania Industrial Corporation was organized in New York a few months ago, and the Guaranty Trust Co., its financial agent, stated that the capital stock was oversubscribed three times. The concern made inquiries here which resulted in its decision to establish its plant in this city, but no concessions or inducements were asked for. Business men and citizens generally are elated at the decision of the company to build its plant at Fredericksburg, and a healthy increase in business activity is anticipated when operations begin.

STUDY TOUR FIXED BY FRUIT GROWERS

New Yorker to Visit Points in Virginia and Other States on Survey.

TRIP TO START AUGUST 7

Winchester, Va., July 4 (A.P.).—Final arrangements for the tour of New York fruit growers to Virginia and West Virginia in August will be made soon by two members of the New York committee in cooperation with Virginia horticulturists, it was learned today.

W. H. Campfield, secretary of the Virginia State Horticultural Society, and F. E. Motz, of Virginia Polytechnic Institute, will work to perfect arrangements with the New York committeemen, Roger C. Coombs, fruit specialist and secretary of the committee, and Prof. Joseph Oskamp, of the department of pomology at the New York State College of Agriculture. These four will go over the route of the tour.

The New York fruit growers plan to travel and study fruit growing methods in the Cumberland-Shenandoah apple section. The tour will continue for three days and will bgein at Martinsburg, W. Va., August 7. It is being arranged by a joint committee of the New York State Horticultural Society and the county farm bureaus.

This will be the second year that Virginia has attracted New York fruit growers. Last year a party of western New York growers came to Virginia with the orchards of Gov. Harry F. Byrd, near Winchester, as their objective. Gov. Byrd's brother, Thomas B. Byrd, went to New York that year to emphasize the invitation to visit the Byrd plantings.

This year a much wider territory will be visited in order that the New Yorkers may gain a knowledge of conditions and operations on various types of apple plantings.

M. C. Burritt, of Hilton, N. Y., who led the tour last year, will head the party again this year as chairman of the joint committee. In communications received here it was learned that Chairman Burritt is emphasizing the point that the tour is not planned as a pleasure jaunt, but rather as a business proposition for the New York grower to study methods in this State.

"I feel," Burritt said, "that we have much to learn from Virginia, and it has been abundantly evident that the 30 men who made the trip last summer felt well repaid for what they saw, the knowledge they gained and the inspiration of seeing how another apple region has worked out its problems. After New York, Virginia is the ranking apple State in the Union. With the adjoining territory in the States of West Virginia, Maryland and Pennsylvania grouped in the Cumberland-Shenandoah apple region the production of New York is exceeded."

The tour, according to plans, will be from Martinsburg, W. Va., to Winchester, Va., to Harrisonburg and to Charlottesville, Va. On the route the committee is working out a detailed schedule of stops, including several at scenic and historic points.

Georgian Asks Bar To Social Equality

Representative Edwards Refers to DePriest Incident in Speech.

Sylvania, Ga., July 4 (A.P.).—Representative Charles G. Edwards, Democrat, of the First Georgia District, in an address here today, declared the negro should continue to have "justice, fair play and equality before the law," but "there should never be anything like social equality of the whites and blacks."

Representative Edwards, while delivering an address at the unveiling of a memorial on the site of the battle of Brier Creek, referred to the entertaining of the wife of Oscar DePriest, negro representative from Illinois, at the White House and declared, "The horrible mistake of encouraging and practicing social equality of the blacks and whites who must live side by side in this country, is more unfortunate than can be imagined and does a greater harm to the black man than he ever dreams of.

"This country must not only be protected against the hordes of undesirable immigrants who would not make good citizens, but it must go on its course as a white man's country, and the great dominant white race, proud of its unblemished blood for thousands of years, will not tolerate social equality, even in high places, without giving the rebuke."

VIRGINIA ALMSHOUSE MERGING CONTINUES

Plans Now Under Way to Leave Only 18 County Institutions in State.

EXPENSES ARE REDUCED

Richmond, Va., July 4 (A.P.).—Definite plans are under way for consolidation of almshouses in the northwest and southwest sections of the State, which if successful will leave only eighteen county almshouses existing in Virginia, it was announced today by Arthur W. James, director of the bureau of county and city organizations of the State Department of Public Welfare.

A joint meeting of boards of supervisors and citizens at Wise County Courthouse next month is being arranged to consider the proposed almshouse consolidation program for the counties of Lee, Scott, Wise, Dickenson, Buchanan, Tazewell, Russell and Washington. The date has been tentatively set for August 15.

There are now in Virginia 32 county almshouses. Seven of these, located near each other, are in the extreme northwestern section of the State and seven are in southwest Virginia. The eighteen county almshouses which would be left if consolidation plans are successful are all so situated that they may be absorbed by the district homes or closed entirely.

Improvement Is Reported.

In a report upon the almshouse situation in Virginia, Mr. James says, in part:

"Before the development of the system of State institutions and organized social work the county almshouses were the 'catchall' for dependent and defective persons. In them were found the insane, epileptic, feebleminded, crippled, blind, diseased, as well as a large number of dependent and neglected children. With the establishment of a system of State hospitals, colonies, sanatoria, child-caring institutions and agencies, however, these classes have largely been removed from the almshouse, with the result that the population has steadily decreased until it is now socially, medically and economically impossible to maintain the individual almshouse in a satisfactory manner.

"Following its first systematic investigation in 1909, the State Board of Charities and Corrections, now the State Department of Public Welfare, adopted two principles for the solution of the age-old problem: First, the closing of the smaller almshouses entirely by an extension and improvement of the principle of 'outdoor' relief or pension, and private hospitalization, made possible by the extension of public and private welfare organizations, and second, the consolidation of the larger almshouses into regional or district homes.

First Policy Closes 43.

"Under the first policy 43 almshouses have been discontinued entirely.

"Under the second policy, that of consolidation, 22 counties, 2 cities and 1 town have consolidated their almshouses into 4 district homes.

"The first of these consolidations was effected by the counties of Culpeper, Prince William, Fairfax, Fauquier and the City of Alexandria at Manassas.

"There are left, therefore, 32 county almshouses in Virginia. Seven of these, all bordering on each other, are located in the extreme northwestern section of the State and seven in the extreme southwest. Definite plans are under way for consolidation in each of these sections. If these succeed there will be left only eighteen county almshouses, all so situated that they may be absorbed by the district homes or closed entirely under the first policy.

"Only one county, so far as is known, has reopened its almhouse, where it had been closed under the first policy and that was probably due to the fact that the number of inmates was too large and the number of pauper citizens too large to have warranted the adoption of the policy in the beginning. These counties are for the most part the small counties in eastern Virginia conveniently situated to the hospitals and social agencies of the large cities. The present system is found more economical, more humane, more convenient."

Mr. James reports that the cost is greatly reduced by having district homes instead of county almhouses. The average monthly per capita cost in the remaining thirty-two almshouses is approximately $30, while the average monthly per capita cost in the district home is placed at $20. The district homes have also distinct advantages in better social, medical and educational facilities, it is said.
